WARREN COUNTY

With Pennsylvania leading the nation with the highest number of traffic fatalities recorded over the long Christmas holiday weekend, Warren County residents were luckier than other areas of the state. Local police agencies investigated only four accidents during the three day period.

PENNSYLVANIA

Pennsylvania holds the dubious honor of leading all the states in the nation in highway deaths over the long Christmas holiday weekend. At least 44 persons died in traffic accidents throughout the commonwealth this weekend.

THE NATION

Space has become an arena for warfare. This is the interpretation being placed on two Defense Department announcements. The recent announcements said the Soviet Union was developing a Fractional Orbital Bombardment System and the United States was developing a "Space Bus" that could drop off hydrogen bombs, city by city over enemy territory.

Aboard a Norwegian freighter in the Hudson River, a fire killed three crewmen and injured 19 others. Three fireboat crews carried out dramatic rescues to pull 24 men from the blazing ship in the pre-dawn darkness.

Dangerous chlorine gas, stored at a chemical warehouse during the Christmas holidays, routs 300 families before firemen neutralize the chemicals.

President and Mrs. Johnson happily married two big yuletide events: the first Christmas they've spent in the White House and their first with their first grandchild.

THE WORLD

A 24-hour Christmas cease-fire called by the Allies in Vietnam ended Monday as American troops finished turkey dinners, cleaned their rifles and went back to war. Although the Viet Cong had announced they would observe a three-day cease-fire for Christmas, the U.S. military headquarters in Saigon said the war was back on as night fell in Vietnam on Christmas Day.

King Constantine of Greece may end his self-exile "in the next few days" and return to his homeland, according to a messenger from the Greek military junta. The messenger spoke in Rome, where the king is staying.

Gov. Romney hops across South Vietnam by plane greeting fighting men, but his "brainwashed" remark comes back to him again.

Radio Peking boasts of six previous nuclear tests but says nothing about a seventh detected Sunday. The silence raises speculation something may have gone wrong.

SPORTS

An outstanding lineup of teams and grapplers will compete in Warren Area High School's Third Annual Holiday Wrestling Tournament on Thursday and Friday. The four competing teams, Curwensville, Jamestown, N.Y., Kittanning and Warren show a collective record of 13 wins and one loss this season and have 20 unbeaten matmen among them. Page 6.

The North blazed the South, 24-0 in the Shrine's College All-Star game at Miami yesterday. Massachusetts quarterback Greg Landry led the Yankees on two scoring drives and Dennis Coyne of Northwestern, who intercepted three South passes, was named the North's most valuable player. Page 7.

Two undefeated teams, Indiana and Tennessee, moved up behind UCLA and Houston in this week's college cage ratings by the AP. Davidson and Vanderbilt fell in the rankings and Bradley dropped out of the top ten. Page 6.

Penn State and Florida State both took Christmas day off from Gator Bowl preparations, but both are back on the practice field today. Pittany Lion Coach Joe Paterno listed Ted Sherman, Ted Kwalick, Jack Curry, Tim Montgomery, Mike McBeth and Dennis Onkott as the players most responsible for the team earning the bowl berth. Page 7.

Boston College, St. John's and Louisville are three of the top teams in the 18th annual ECAC Holiday Festival opening tonight at Madison Square Garden. Page 6.

TWO TEEN-AGE BOYS INJURED

Ambulance attendants, assisted by a state trooper of the local substation, aid two teenage boys injured in a one car accident yesterday on Route 59 approximately seven and a half miles east of Warren. Robert F. Williams, 17, of 1308 Sill St. and Edwin Sullivan, 16, of 220 Walnut St. were rushed to Warren General Hospital following the 3:10 p.m. accident. Williams was treated and released, according to hospital officials, while Sullivan, who suffered severe scalp lacerations was admitted for observation. (Photo by Knight)

4 Traffic Mishaps In Area

Despite the snow and rain slicked highways and a national statistics figure indicating that hundreds would be killed in highway accidents over the holiday, Warren area police enjoyed a rather quiet weekend with State Police of the local substation and borough police each investigating two accidents for a total of four traffic mishaps in the area.

Two local youths were treated at Warren General Hospital yesterday for injuries sustained in a one-car accident which occurred on Route 59 about seven and a half miles east of Warren.

According to state police of the local substation, Robert F. Williams, 17, of 1308 Sill St., the driver of the vehicle, was treated for lacerations of the scalp and forehead, while Edwin Sullivan, 16, of 220 Walnut St., was treated for severe scalp lacerations. Sullivan was admitted to the hospital, according to hospital officials, while Williams was treated and released.

The accident occurred at 3:10 p.m., according to trooper Dennis Hoak who investigated. Trooper Hoak reported the

State Leads Nation In Traffic Fatalities

Pennsylvania traffic fatalities approached a tragic new record over the long Christmas holiday weekend. And the state held the dubious honor of leading all the states in the nation in highway deaths.

At least 44 persons died in traffic accidents in all parts of the Keystone State — on rural roads, on city streets, on narrow thoroughfares, on big wide expressways, and even on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

The toll counting began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Monday. On Christmas night, rain, mixed with sleet and snow in some sections, began falling, making driving even more hazardous for the tired, home-bound holiday traveler.

The steady climb of highway deaths, on a weekend dedicated to religious peace and good will, neared the mark of 46 established over the longer July 4th weekend of 1963. That period lasted 102 hours, compared with 78 over this Christmas holiday.

Thanksgiving 1963, also covering 102 hours, recorded 43 highway deaths. There were a total of 36 crashes in which persons died. In two — at Breezewood Saturday night and Paradise Sunday morning—there were three victims each. Five other violent collisions each resulted in the deaths of two persons.

Seven persons, all past 50, were killed by cars as they crossed streets or roads near their homes.

National Toll Reaches 630 At Midnight

Holiday traffic deaths passed the 600 mark Monday night and mounted steadily as the home-bound Christmas celebrants clogged the nation's roads.

The toll on the nation's highways—many rain or snow-slickened—was running behind the record pace in 1965, when 720 persons lost their lives during the three-day holiday, the National Safety Council reported.

Fatalities mounted to 630 in a count that began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Monday.

In the three-day observance last year the toll was 584. The all-time high for any holiday period, 784, was set in a four-day Thanksgiving observance in 1966.

Leaking Chlorine Gas Forces 300 Families from Homes

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Clouds of dangerous chlorine gas leaking from fire-damaged storage cylinders drifted through a Jacksonville residential area Christmas morning, forcing 300 families from their homes while authorities neutralized the fumes.

Most of the people routed from an 80-square-block area were allowed to return home Monday afternoon as the job of neutralizing the liquid chlorine with caustic soda neared completion. Many of them had spent Christmas Day in a high school gymnasium.

There were no reports of injuries to the residents of Jacksonville's Lackawanna section, but three firemen were treated for chlorine inhalation and released during the day.

Eighteen firemen also required medical attention when a $150,000 fire Saturday afternoon damaged the Apperson Chemical Co. plant, where the cylinders of chlorine had been stored temporarily because of the Christmas holidays.

Chlorine fumes began spreading over the Lackawanna area late Sunday, several hours after firemen had abandoned a precautionary vigil over the Apperson plant. Authorities became aware of the danger when residents of the area began registering complaints about a strong odor and difficulty in breathing.

Fire Chief W.A. Jackson, going on radio and television to alert the public, warned that clouds of chlorine and ammonia gas would be drifting across southwest Jacksonville during the night. He and Civil Defense officials later ordered evacuation of the area when the fumes became more concentrated. City police, using nightsticks, went from house to house knocking on doors waking families. Children carrying unopened Christmas gifts and parents toting coats and blankets left their homes in 35-degree weather and went to the gymnasium about two miles away.

Two young workmen for the chemical firm were hailed as heroes during the all-night battle to neutralize the cylinders of chlorine.

Willie Clarence Williams, 20, wrestled the tanks onto a fork lift truck and his partner, Carl Dickey, 18, raised Williams and the tanks to a level where they could be dropped nozzle first into drums of caustic soda and water.

Deputy Fire Chief G. H. Fulton hailed the boys as "heroes" and said "they worked their hearts out."

First Family Spends Holiday at White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was President Johnson's first family Christmas at the White House, and for his 6-month-old grandson it was the first Christmas anywhere.

The baby, Patrick Lyndon Nugent, was the center of attention as the early-rising Johnsons gathered around a 5-foot Norway spruce tree for the traditional exchange of gifts.

Heretofore the First Family has gone to the Johnson ranch in Texas for Christmas. But this year the chief executive barely made it back to Washington in time after his globe-girdling flight to Australia.

He brought back with him some Christmas gifts to add to the pile under the tree in the Yellow Oval Room. Not the least of these were a little jersey and some red and blue pants for his grandson, Johnson announced he bought them himself at a military post exchange for $1.58.

There also was a gold cross for the baby from Pope Paul VI, whom Johnson visited on his return flight from Australia. For Mrs. Johnson, the Pope sent a 15th-century Madonna and Child.

All in all the President pronounced it a "wonderful, wonderful" Christmas, with more gifts "than you can count" stuffed in the seven red velvet stockings that hung from a mantel in the family living quarters.

The President and his wife, Lady Bird, went to 10 a.m. Holy Communion service at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, near Dupont Circle. They were accompanied by their daughter Lynda and her new husband, Marine Capt. Charles Robb.

When they joined about 75 other worshippers in singing "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," the President put his arm briefly around his wife.

Sunday morning Johnson went to early Mass at St. Dominic's Roman Catholic Church with his other daughter, Luci, and her husband, Patrick Nugent, who are up here from their Texas home for Christmas.

Lynda and Mrs. Johnson were dressed in bright Christmas green for the church service. As they left the gray stone church, the President paused on the steps for photographers and asked the rector, the Rev. Henry H. Breul, to get into the picture too.

Fear Dozens Dead In Apartment House Explosion in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — An explosion that police attributed to a faulty gas main blasted a six-story apartment building into huge piles of rubble Monday night. A bystander said 10 or 12 bodies were removed from the wreckage.

The building appeared to have contained 24 apartments, indicating that perhaps 100 persons lived there. Most of these were still missing and presumed dead in the rubble early Tuesday.

The explosion occurred about 9:20 p.m. along the Moscow River about a mile downstream from the Kremlin.

Ten to 15 minutes later, a bomb exploded underneath the empty car of the Associated Press Moscow bureau chief as it was parked at his apartment building two blocks across the river. There was no apparent connection with the blast that shattered the apartment building and no known reason for the car bombing.

The apartment building was turned into a mass of flaming rubble without warning, so far as bystanders knew. Gas explosions occur from time to time in old Soviet buildings, their frequency being hard to determine because they are not publicly reported.

Officials refuse to give any information on such things.

Dozens of ambulances, fire engines and police cars gathered around the wreckage, and searchlights pierced the cold haze as rescue workers looked for survivors and carried out bodies. A few hours later, as work continued, heavy snow began falling.

It was an ordinary weekday night for Russians since those who celebrate Christmas do so Jan. 7 by the Russian Orthodox Church calendar.

The car bombing was unusual. Veteran correspondents said they could recall nothing like it in the Soviet capital.

The AP correspondent, Henry

S. Bradsher, his wife and two children, had left the car about 25 minutes before the bombing and were not injured.

The car was a Volkswagen usually driven around town by Bradsher's wife, Monica.

King Spends Christmas Negotiating for Return

ROME (AP) — King Constantine spent part of Christmas Day negotiating with an envoy from Athens about when and how he would return to his throne in Greece.

The envoy, Haralambos Potamianos, commented as he left to report to the Greek regime: "I am 100 per cent certain the king will return. It might happen in the next few days."

King Constantine's mother, Queen Frederika, also spoke of a quick return. She told photographers who had come to take Christmas pictures of the king: "We hope to return to Greece soon."

The negotiations between Constantine and Potamianos were the second series of talks between them since the king fled to Rome after the collapse of his Dec. 13 effort to unseat the Greek military regime.

Potamianos said at the airport he hoped he would not have to come back for more talks.

He was here two days this time. His first trip was last Monday.

He also said that Constantine and Premier George Papadopoulos, the junta leader, had exchanged Christmas wishes by cable over the weekend.

On his arrival in Athens Potam-ianos again said the king might be back soon. This caused speculation in Athens that the return might take place by New Year's Day.

There has been other speculation in the Greek capital, however, that it would take much longer.

100 Policemen Stymie Rioting In Jail Break

CINCINNATI (AP) — About 100 heavily armed policemen stymied rioting in the jail section of Cincinnati's downtown courthouse Monday night after inmates roamed for an hour outside their cells on the sixth floor.

Hamilton County authorities said 47 of the 250 inmates were involved in the disturbance which erupted after prisoners jammed benches outside the cellblock. There were no escapes reported.

"A group of the prisoners said they were going to spend Christmas right at home. They're going to be disappointed now since they're back in their cells," jailer Elijah Hilton told newsmen.

Pre-Dawn Ship Fire Takes Lives of Three Crewmen

NEW YORK (AP) — A pre-dawn ship fire, apparently first spotted by a Manhattan apartment dweller with a Hudson River view, took the lives of 3 crewmen and injured 18 others Monday on a Norwegian freighter anchored in the river.

The fire, which came about six hours after a Christmas party aboard the Dianet, gutted the interior of the three aft decks, the fire department said.

The three bodies were found in cabins.

Among the injured, police said, were three women crew members.

At the Mississippi River port of Ostrea, La., south of New Orleans, eight crewmen were burned early Monday when an 18,000-ton Gulf Oil Co. tanker was ripped by explosions. The explosions and resulting fire came after a string of barges rammed the SS Gulf Supreme, which had a 55-man crew.

Two of the men were in serious condition.

In New York, the fire department said the ship blaze might have started as long as 30 minutes before alerting of the Dianet crew began. The alarm came by telephone from an unidentified person almost half a mile north of 79th Street, off which the ship lay.

The captain, I. J. Avligievlebo, and five crewmen escaped injury and remained aboard, and two of the 29-member crew were aboard when the fire broke out about 4:15 a.m.

Cause of the fire had not been determined.

The Norwegian ship, built in 1962, is owned by Christian J. Reim of Porsgrunn, Norway, and was bound for Yonkers, N.Y., just north of New York City, with a cargo of sugar.

The sugar was not damaged.

Romney's Remark Comes Back to Haunt Him

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Gov. George Romney hopped across the country by plane and helicopter Monday, wishing U.S. fighting men a merry Christmas. Then when he reached this Marine base, the remark he once made about being brainwashed in South Vietnam rose to haunt him briefly.

As the Michigan governor, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, passed through the mess hall, a Marine refused to shake his proffered hand.

"What's the matter?" asked Romney.

"I don't agree with some of the things you've been saying about Vietnam—like brainwashing," the Marine replied.

Romney told the Marine he had learned a lot since his visit to South Vietnam two years ago, which had prompted him to say several months ago that Saigon officials had brainwashed him. The two then shook hands.

Passing through the mess line with the Marines, Romney got some advice from a mess sergeant such as his mother might have given him as a boy—to eat.

Romney had a Christmas turkey dinner earlier in the day at the officers' mess at Kai Khe, headquarters of the 1st Division. It was obvious that now he was not too hungry. He put little food on his plate.

The mess sergeant noticed this and declared: "You take this stuffing, or next year I vote Democratic." Romney decided to have some stuffing.

Throughout a busy day, Romney saw hundreds of U.S. servicemen, from Chu Chi and Lai Khe in the south to Da Nang in the north.

Forces Go Back to War After 24-Hour Cease-Fire

SAIGON (AP) — Allied ground forces went back to war in South Vietnam and U.S. fighter-bombers returned to targets in the North late Monday after a 24-hour Christmas cease-fire that the U.S. Command said was broken by 79 enemy shooting incidents.

Military officers said Tuesday most of the air strikes were against numerous truck convoys that had been taking advantage of the holiday bombing pause and were still heading southward with supplies for enemy ground units.

Hours after the allied cease-fire ended at 6 p.m. Monday in South Vietnam the U.S. Command had no reports of major ground fighting. In the past it has taken several hours after cease-fires for heavy combat to resume. The Viet Cong have said they would observe a three-day cease-fire ending at midnight Tuesday but this was ignored by the allied side.

Of the 79 incidents reported by U.S. headquarters, 20 were termed serious—meaning they involved casualties. Two American soldiers were reported killed and 25 wounded. Enemy losses were put at 24 dead.

Soon after the allied cease-fire ended, Navy Skyhawk jets caught a seven-mile-long truck convoy about midnight between Hanoi and the demilitarized zone, headquarters said. Pilots reported destroying 23 of about 150 vehicles and damaging eight others.

Farther south, Navy and Air Force pilots struck separate attacks on truck convoys. They reported destroying at least four trucks and damaging eight others.

ers, while touching off numerous secondary explosions.

Air Force B52 bombers also were back in the air. One strike Monday night hit at suspected enemy gathering areas south of Da Nang in South Vietnam's Quang Nam Province, before daybreak Tuesday, another flight mauled suspected bivouac areas, weapons positions and infiltration routes in the DMZ four miles northwest of the Con Thien Marine outpost.

In addition to the U.S.-reported cease-fire incidents, the South Vietnamese military headquarters reported 39 more against government troops and civilians. Military casualties were reported as one killed, five wounded. Eleven civilians were reported kidnapped. The South Vietnamese reported killing 30 of the enemy.

Mishaps

Williams vehicle went off the road on the north berm. Williams lost control, trooper Hoak said. The vehicle then traveled back across the road, struck a stone bank on the south berm, traveled along the bank for 68 feet, then traveled back onto the highway and skidded 53 feet more coming to rest in the west bound lane.

The accident caused an estimated $1,000 damage, according to police.

At police also investigated an accident Saturday which caused an estimated $1,200 damage to a vehicle operated by John Mathers, 29, of RD 1, Pittsfield, according to a report by trooper Paul W. Brown.

The accident occurred at 3:20 a.m., about four and a half miles west of Pittsfield, trooper Brown reported, when Mathers lost control of his vehicle, ran off the road and hit an embankment.

There were no injuries according to police.

Two St. Mary's residents and a Ridgway woman sustained minor injuries in a one-car accident yesterday, according to Warren Borough police.

Mrs. Raymond Harrigan, 64, of 208 Jackson ave., Ridgway, Mrs. Carrie Blair, 75, of 214 Rosley st., St. Marys, and F. del Blair, 70, of 214 Rosley st., St. Marys, were treated at Warren General Hospital and released, following the 7:50 p.m. accident, according to hospital officials.

The accident occurred, police said, when a car operated by Raymond Thomas Harrigan, 65, of 208 Jackson ave., Ridgway, traveling south on Conewango ave., struck a utility pole about 200 feet north of Third st. According to police, Harrigan stated he had pulled off the road to avoid hitting a car traveling north on Conewango, on the left hand side, across the center line.

Damage to the Harrigan car was estimated at $250.

An accident at 6:33 p.m. yesterday resulted in a total of $885 damage to three automobiles and a 76-year-old Warren man being charged with reckless driving, according to borough police.

The accident occurred, police said, when a car driven by John J. Ugard, 76, of 24 Crescent Park, traveling east on Fourth ave., crashed into the rear of a legally parked car owned by Marilyn Y. Ciprich, of 617 Fourth ave. The impact of the crash, police said, forced the Ciprich car over the curb and caused the car to be pushed approximately 25 feet. The impact of the crash also caused the Ugard car to slide to the right, police said, striking the rear of a third car, also legally parked. The third vehicle involved was owned by Mary E. Kays, of 617 Fourth ave.

No one was injured in the mishap, according to police, who estimated damages at $350 to the Ugard car, $500 to the Ciprich machine and $35 to the Kays' vehicle.

North Viet Rejects LBJ's Plan

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam has rejected as "nothing but worn-out tricks" the five-point plan President Johnson laid down Dec. 19 for peace in Vietnam. The rejection came in a commentary in Hanoi's official Communist party newspaper Nhan Dan.

The only solution, the paper said, is for the United States to halt unconditionally the bombing of North Vietnam and to withdraw U.S. and other allied forces from South Vietnam.

These are the key points of a peace plan the Communists have held forth for several years and have not been acceptable to the United States or South Vietnam.

The President laid down his five points during a televised interview with the White House correspondents of the three major U.S. television networks before he left for Australia for the memorial services for Prime Minister Harold E. Holt.

Johnson listed these proposals for peace:

— Both sides must respect the demilitarized zone separating the two Vietnams.

— The unity of Vietnam must be a matter of negotiation and peaceful adjustments.

— The North Vietnamese must pull their men out of neighboring Laos and stop infiltrating Laos.

— There must be a one-man, one-vote constitutional government in South Vietnam, with the 20 per cent of the population now under Red control living under it.

— The South Vietnamese government is prepared for informal talks with the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

Space Has Become An Arena for Warfare

(C) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Ten years after Sputnik, space is becoming an arena for warfare.

This is the interpretation being placed here on two recent Defense Department announcements — that the Soviet Union is developing a Fractional Orbital Bombardment System and that the United States is developing a "Space Bus" that can drop off hydrogen bombs, city by city, over enemy territory.

Some officials are concerned that these announcements herald a potential escalation of strategic warfare. Others welcome what they consider a new candor in discussing a problem that was there, anyway.

Much of the concern here stems from a speech by Dr. John S. Foster Jr., director of defense research and engineering, in Dallas on Dec. 13, he first applied the "space bus" nickname to the American weapon, which is a cluster of maneuverable missile warheads.

Technically, neither development would have been called a space weapon under the narrow definition used for the past decade because neither circles the earth even once.

Yet the Soviet warhead flies an orbital path for most of the circuit until a braking rocket crews trapped in Suez Manage to Enjoy Holiday

GREAT BITTER LAKE, Egypt (AP) — It seems hard to believe, but Christmas passed off merrily for the crews of 14 foreign ships trapped in the suddenly brings it down and it would be hairsplitting to deny that it is a space-borne weapon.

Furthermore, Dr. Foster has made the American vehicle a space weapon by definition.

It is the first time that the two major world powers have been reported to be working on offensive space weapons.

Until now, at least as far as public appearances are concerned, space has been reserved either for peaceful exploration or for "defensive" military systems such as reconnaissance satellites, communications relays and devices that would warn of clandestine nuclear tests.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara officially disclosed the Russian FOBS work last Nov. 3.

The "Space Bus" Dr. Foster referred to is simply a cluster of warheads, all launched by one ballistic missile on a ballistic trajectory, but free to alter their courses in time to spread over a number of targets.

By calling this multiple warhead technique a space weapon, Dr. Foster appears to have done two things that appreciably change the public thinking on space warfare, some observers here believe.

First, he has in effect included ballistic missiles in the category of offensive space weapons for the first time. Hitherto, they had been considered a very-long-range artillery. Second, by admitting what weapon experts have known all along — that only political restraint has kept space from indeed being an arena of warfare — he may have clarified the public record and opened to wider public discussion the whole question of aggression in space.

Many observers feel that the issue has been clouded in the public mind since the first Sputnik was launched on Oct. 4, 1957, by a Soviet ballistic missile.

The treaty on outer space negotiated this year principally by Russia and the United States prohibits the use of space for aggressive purposes.

The treaty was signed at a time when the administration already knew, but had not told the public, that Russia was testing the Fractional Orbital Bombardment System. The lawyers who negotiated the treaty now argue that FOBS is not affected by it, because FOBS does not go into orbit and is considered merely the development of a weapon rather than the stationing of a weapon in space.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk explained to the Senate foreign relations committee last March 7 — six months after the Soviet FOBS test flights began — that "it is generally accepted that anything that is in orbit is (in) outer space."

FOBS does not go into orbit (though the vehicle from which its warhead is launched does); therefore it is not in outer space and does not violate the treaty.

A natural follow-on to the FOBS, technically speaking, is what military men call "MOBS" or Multi-Orbit Bombardment System. Such a weapon would clearly violate the treaty, but McNamara did not deal extensively with that potential in discussing the Fractional Orbital System.

Multi-Orbit weapons could circle only a few times before striking; be placed in space only for a few days in a situation like the Cuban missile crisis and then recalled by the launching nation; or be stationed in orbit for months or years.

Before the Foster speech, the same kind of disclaimer could have been made for the "Space Bus" as for FOBS — that it did not violate the treaty because it was not a space weapon.

Now, the Foster "Space Bus" nickname — applied to solve one set of political problems — seems to some observers to have posed a new set by further confusing the sophisticated arguments already surrounding the space treaty.

If a ballistic missile with many warheads — something that has already been developed for several years — is suddenly a space weapon, they ask, why isn't a ballistic missile with a single warhead also a space weapon?

And if a multi-headed missile is not really a space weapon, since it does not go into orbit, then why did Foster say it was?

Flames Turn Connecticut Home Into A 'Volcano'

WATERTOWN, Conn. (AP) — A fire took the lives of five members of the Clifford Green family early Christmas morning when kerosene-fueled flames turned their home into what one fireman called a "volcano."

Mrs. Green was the only member of the family to survive. Her 32-year-old husband and four children were asphyxiated, a medical examiner said.

The children were Clifford Jr., 11, Elizabeth, 9, Craig, 6, and Leisa, 4.

Mrs. Green was reported on the danger list at Waterbury Hospital after suffering serious burns. Police said she also suffered cuts on her face and

Service For Ernest Cawcroft Is Scheduled

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — A memorial service for the late Ernest Cawcroft will be held at 10 a.m. today in the chambers of Supreme Court Justice Rollin Fancher, Cawcroft, the dean of Jamestown attorneys, died Saturday at the age of 87.

Samuel B. Conte, president of the Jamestown Bar Association, said yesterday he has named 14 attorneys who will serve as honorary pallbearers for the funeral.

Cawcroft a native of Vermont, was an attorney for more than 60 years. He was one of the co-authors of the Jamestown City Charter and the dominating figure that brought about the construction of the Third st. bridge over the Chadaokan river many years ago. Cawcroft was also regarded as a political and business leader.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 a.m. at St. Luke's Church in Jamestown.

hands when she dove through a window to escape the flames.

Town Fire Marshal Avery Lamphier said Mrs. Green told him that she was adjusting the space heater in the living room of the four-room house, about 8 a.m., when some of the flaming fuel apparently spilled and exploded.

The interior of the concrete block dwelling, which had been converted from a lake-front summer cottage, was engulfed in fire within a few minutes, Lamphier said.

Police Lt. Edward Williams was the first to arrive at the scene after Mrs. Green made her way to a neighbor's home. The neighbors called police and firemen. Williams said he was unable to enter the one-story house because of flames shooting out from the windows and doors.

The body of the husband was found in his bed. Two of the children also were found in their beds. One child's body was near a window and another child near an outside door.

212 MARKET STREET WARREN

Three Slain In Lexington

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A furniture factory worker walked into a grocery Monday and shot to death his estranged wife who clerked in the store, another clerk and the owner, police reported.

Police Chief Lester Sheets identified the man as Daniel Lewis, 31, and said a woman relative of the store owner then hit Lewis on the head with a soft drink bottle. Police were summoned and arrested Lewis in the store, O. T. Nicholson's grocery on West Fifth Street, about five blocks from downtown Lexington.

Lexington is about 20 miles south of Winston-Salem.

Killed were Nicholson, who was in his late 70s; Mrs. Terri Lewis, 33; and Charles Robbins, 39.

Lewis was treated at a hospital and taken to jail for questioning about a motive. The chief said he would charge Lewis with murder.

The police chief said that Lewis used a .22-caliber lever-action rifle which he had to work by hand after each shot.

There were other customers in the store, which was open for business Christmas Day, but they were not injured.

Chief Sheets quoted a male customer as saying that Lewis "just walked in and started shooting."

The chief said that the two clerks were behind the counter of the self-service store, near the cash register, and Nicholson was in another part of the store.

He said the woman who hit Lewis was a Mrs. Jones, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Nicholson.

The chief said that apparently Lewis made no attempt to escape.

Republicans May Capture Control of House in Nov.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Committee for an Effective Congress said Monday it is highly possible that Republicans will capture control of the House next November, and gain six seats in the Senate as well.

The committee, which describes itself as a nonpartisan group dedicated to quality and ability in Congress, reported in a year-end analysis:

"At all levels of American life, people share similar fears of insecurity and gnawing doubts to such an intense degree that the country may in fact be suffering from a kind of national nervous breakdown."

In this situation, the liberally oriented group said, the presidential election next November "promises to be very close."

"The possibilities are wide open, and the political waters are boiling," the committee said. "Vietnam is the symbol and principal manifestation of the real question facing America."

"This issue is whether the United States is to seek its destiny as arbiter of the globe, or whether it will live by the cardinal rule of the post-imperial world: that a nation must first find its salvation at home."

The committee said party alignments are shifting, political independence is gaining strength, and Democratic party unity is splintering.

It said a December survey of Congress found members of the House "preoccupied with crime, riots and inflation."

"Lacking confidence in 'Great Society' programs which have produced more confusion than aid support, wary of the moodiness of the American people, and afraid of the 988 elections, the House was immobilized."

It said its poll indicated Vietnam is the overriding and baffling issue for Congress members—who are "not as convinced as their constituents that the war is worth the cost, or that a military victory is even possible."

"But most Democrats, after much writing and squirming, have decided to live with the official policy and challenge Republicans to come up with an alternative."

The group said the chances of a Republican takeover, which would require a GOP gain of 31 seats, will depend largely on the popularity of the 1968 GOP presidential nominee.

The committee said 1987

marked a resurrection of the Senate through "a major struggle to recapture its dwindling influence over foreign policy."

Estimating the Senate election outlook, the committee said the GOP might gain six seats, increasing its strength to 41 leaving the Democrats with only an eight-vote majority.

"In most cases it is anticipated that the new Republicans could be of moderate stripe, reinforcing the GOP's new look in the Senate, and possibly altering the leadership structure," the committee said.

A spokesman said the committee has not yet taken a stand on any of next year's House races but has endorsed 10 senators—seven Democrats and three Republicans—for renomination so far.

The Democratic senators are J.W. Fulbright of Arkansas, Joseph S. Clark, Pennsylvania, Frank Church, Idaho, George McGovern, South Dakota, Ernest Gruening, Alaska, Wayne Morse, Oregon, and A.S. Mike Monroney, Oklahoma. The Republicans are George D. Aiken, Vermont, Thomas H. Kuchel, California, and Thruston B. Morton, Kentucky.

Lindsay Plans Big Increase In Street Patrol

(c) N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK—Mayor John V. Lindsay will begin his third year in City Hall by ordering a series of changes in police operations designed to increase the number of policemen on the streets by more than 40 percent before the end of 1968.

The mayor talked about the police changes during a year-end interview at Gracie Mansion, his official residence.

While making it clear that he had no intention of increasing the police force above its present size of 28,000 men, Lindsay said uniformed officers would be freed for patrol by several new procedures—hiring civilians within a month to take over the towaway program and other traffic duties, greatly expanding the use of one-man patrol cars, instituting an "officer alert" system to call policemen into court only when they are actually needed, seeking authorization for meter maids to enforce all traffic laws.

Can We Buy Our Way Out?

Day after day the evidence grows stronger that we can't expect to buy our way out of dilemmas created by modern-day sociological upheavals. The more we spend, the more needs we find to call for greater and greater expenditures. The city of Detroit, where $100 million was spent in a previous fiscal year on antipoverty and other "uplift" programs, has estimated a need of $250 billion in the next ten years.

And in New York City, where a whopping $840.2 million in federal funds were spent in 1967, it is now estimated that the need for the next decade will be as much as $50 billion.

This illustrates the high cost of assuming that money, especially federal money, is the only solution to all of our social problems. And it points up the fact that if we don't soon come up with something different the cost of our give-away programs will eventually snow us under.

Perhaps President Franklin D. Roosevelt had this in mind away back in 1935 when he said, "The Federal Government must and shall quit this business of relief . . . Continued dependence upon relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration, fundamentally destructive to the national fiber. To dole out relief in this manner is to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit."

Then not too long ago, the welfare commissioner of New York City stated flatly that the present welfare system is "bankrupt as a social institution." That, under existing rules, for every person on public aid, at least two more were eligible and entitled to allowances.

It Was Her Only Present

Christmas was good. When I was nine, I prayed hard for snow and it came on Christmas Eve after dark. The flakes were big and lazy. I scratched a hole in the ice on the window and looked out at the white silence. The street lights were iridescent halos. The roofs across the street had ermine wraps. Some of the flakes clung to the window and looked like lace place mats.

I enjoyed the smell of the boughs of the tree. The colors of the ornaments caught the light in the morning and they sent spangled kisses across the room in reds and blue and silvers and yellows. The kitchen was hot and busy before church, and after. My father used a swift whetstone on the carving knife, and he stood at the dining room table to slice diagonally into the shiny brown squirt along the blade as the long white slices peeled off.

There were cinnamon apples and walnuts, brazil nuts, rich sugary candies that tasted like their colors. All the apples had healthy cheeks. The stuffing came out of the turkey, gray-brown and steaming. The gravy boat was full and we had to be careful dipping a ladle into it. The mashed potatoes were snowy in one bowl, and the turnips had a steamy pungency. We kissed each other Merry Christmas, and later we forgot whether we did, so we tried it again. My mother would stoop for the kiss, wiping her hands on an apron, and pretending that she did not like it. "Go on and play," she would say. "Keep out of my way."

The tea biscuits were hot and the square of butter sat in the steam and collapsed. Cranberries were homemade and tart. We three children kept eating, our eyes darting all over the table for something that might have escaped attention. We were scrubbed, dressed in our best, and swung our legs back and forth under the table. Adele had her special doll carriage, and the waxy-looking doll closed its eyes when she laid it tenderly on the little pillow. John had his bronze hook and ladder, and he pushed and pulled it across the living room rug and made sounds like frightening sirens. There were other gifts, toys, games that would be broken or missing next week, a shirt or two and a tie or two, some new pin and white frocks for Adele.

I watched that snow dying on crystal whirlpools in pale blue sky and I wanted to get out on Bramhall Avenue with that new Flexible Flyer, but my father said that the sled could wait, the dishes came first. The dishes always came first. I washed. Johnny dried. I have never seen so many dishes. Why, I silently asked my mother, must boys do this when there is a little girl around the house. Silently.

It was almost dark when I got permission. First I had to change to old clothes and I had to be civil when I was reprimanded for leaving a hard white ring inside the creamed onion bowl. I took the sled down the two flights of stairs, feeling the lightness and strength of it and I saw the other kids playing, or trying to stand on new ice skates, the joy of Christmas began to grow and grow until breathing became work.

I walked up to Bergen Avenue and looked down Bramhall and when the sleighs were out of the way, I started trotting toward Sackett and kept going faster and faster and then I flung myself on that sled and it went down the middle, a million miles a minute, with two rooster trails of snow behind it.

A big moon came up early and my mother appeared on the little porch and gave me an extra half hour. I had a pocket full of hard striped candy and some boys walked back up slowly with me, and we talked about Christmas and how good it feels. Gilbert Newell had real fleeced-lined gloves and he let us try them on. The wind stopped and the black branches of the trees kept the snow on top.

We understood Christmas better than anybody. Our cheeks were red, our eyes glistened and we wiped our noses on the backs of our mittens. We felt a joy that no adult could understand.

Two days later, there was some excitement because the Rev. Edward A. Kelly had found a Raggedy Ann doll in the manger near the main altar. Everybody denied knowing anything about it. Then a poor girl from Summit Avenue, a skinny kid who hung loose in a hand-me-down dress, said she had done it because she figured Santa forgot to give the infant Jesus anything.

It was her only present. She got it free from a fire house. I heard the story and I got mad at myself and I couldn't stop the dirty lousy tears because I knew then that I knew nothing about Christmas. . .

Wiped Out

By Christmas

WASHINGTON—I was walking through Lafayette Park the other morning when I almost tripped over a bum sleeping under some newspapers. I was about to continue on my way when I suddenly realized that the bum was my good friend, Hiram Penrose. I was shocked. "Hiram," I said, shaking him awake. "What the heck are you doing here?" Hiram rubbed his unshaven chin. "I'm busted, flat broke, wiped out," he said.

"But Hiram, I saw you a month ago. You looked great. You said business was fine. It couldn't have been the stock market." "It wasn't the stock market. It was Christmas."

"You were wiped out by Christmas?"

"I was living in a dream world. It could never happen to me." "You poor guy. Tell me about it."

"It all started when my secretary gave me a list of people we had to take care of for Christmas. It included the telephone operators, the mailmen, the superintendent of the building, the cleaning women, other secretaries of people we do business with, the maître d' hotel at my club, the locker room boy, my lawyer, my doctor, the children of my dentist, the parking lot attendants, the policeman on the traffic beat, the sergeant at the precinct and my travel agent."

"There were 500 names on the list, and I ran out of cash before I got to the doorman at the Mayflower Hotel."

"So I borrowed money from the bank to meet my obligations. I put up my business as collateral. Two days later my wife handed me a list of people she had to take care of for Christmas. It included the milkman, the laundryman, the trash men, the postman, the plumber, the gardener, the neighbor's children, the newspaper delivery boys, the tree surgeon, the gas man, the druggist, the liquor store manager and on and on."

"I went back to the bank and asked for another loan. They made me put up my house in exchange."

"I thought I could handle it, but I had forgotten the Christmas presents for my mother-in-law, four sisters-in-law, my father, my brothers' kids, my godson and an aunt in San Francisco I had never seen." Penrose was shaking. "Do I have to go on?"

"Go ahead, Hiram. It will be good for you."

"After buying the presents, we had no money left for postage for Christmas cards. I asked my wife if we could dispense with Christmas cards this year and she said, 'Not on your life. What will people think?' I went to another bank and asked for another loan, but they wouldn't give it to me, so I had to borrow money on my insurance."

"Then I made a mistake. I forgot to give my insurance broker a Christmas present and he became suspicious of my financial status."

"So he called in the loan. Once the rumor began, everyone started calling in their loans. The word was out that 'Penrose had been bankrupt by Christmas.'"

"Two days before Christmas they took away my business, Christmas Eve I lost my house. The kids have been out with relatives, my wife is living with her parents."

"I tried to keep back the tears. 'What can I say, Penrose?' 'I guess it wouldn't be so bad, but what really hurts is the milkman never even said, 'Thank you.'"

"Didn't we get any cards with hawks on them . . . ?"

"I was shocked. 'Hiram,' I said, shaking him awake. 'What the heck are you doing here?' Hiram rubbed his unshaven chin. 'I'm busted, flat broke, wiped out,' he said."

"But Hiram, I saw you a month ago. You looked great. You said business was fine. It couldn't have been the stock market."

"It wasn't the stock market. It was Christmas."

"You were wiped out by Christmas?"

"I was living in a dream world. It could never happen to me."

"You poor guy. Tell me about it."

"It all started when my secretary gave me a list of people we had to take care of for Christmas. It included the telephone operators, the mailmen, the superintendent of the building, the cleaning women, other secretaries of people we do business with, the maître d' hotel at my club, the locker room boy, my lawyer, my doctor, the children of my dentist, the parking lot attendants, the policeman on the traffic beat, the sergeant at the precinct and my travel agent."

"There were 500 names on the list, and I ran out of cash before I got to the doorman at the Mayflower Hotel."

"So I borrowed money from the bank to meet my obligations. I put up my business as collateral."

"Two days later my wife handed me a list of people she had to take care of for Christmas. It included the milkman, the laundryman, the trash men, the postman, the plumber, the gardener, the neighbor's children, the newspaper delivery boys, the tree surgeon, the gas man, the druggist, the liquor store manager and on and on."

"I went back to the bank and asked for another loan. They made me put up my house in exchange."

"I thought I could handle it, but I had forgotten the Christmas presents for my mother-in-law, four sisters-in-law, my father, my brothers' kids, my godson and an aunt in San Francisco I had never seen."

Penrose was shaking. "Do I have to go on?"

"Go ahead, Hiram. It will be good for you."

"After buying the presents, we had no money left for postage for Christmas cards. I asked my wife if we could dispense with Christmas cards this year and she said, 'Not on your life. What will people think?' I went to another bank and asked for another loan, but they wouldn't give it to me, so I had to borrow money on my insurance."

"Then I made a mistake. I forgot to give my insurance broker a Christmas present and he became suspicious of my financial status."

"So he called in the loan. Once the rumor began, everyone started calling in their loans. The word was out that 'Penrose had been bankrupt by Christmas.'"

"Two days before Christmas they took away my business, Christmas Eve I lost my house. The kids have been out with relatives, my wife is living with her parents."

"I tried to keep back the tears. 'What can I say, Penrose?' 'I guess it wouldn't be so bad, but what really hurts is the milkman never even said, 'Thank you.'"

"Didn't we get any cards with hawks on them . . . ?"

Norman Rockwell Does Cover For New Boy Scout Calendar

By FRANKLIN HOFF

With thousands of choice calendars appearing at every year end, many look forward to each new Boy Scout calendar, painted by Norman Rockwell, America's favorite painter.

The new 1968 Boy Scout calendar, which is again supplied this year by Mahan Motors, is full of action, in nearly morning scene Scouts are pouring from the entrance of a Scout troop's headquarters, on a hike, carrying overnight packs on their backs. In a second-story window in an apartment next door, a lad who isn't a Scout, waves somewhat disconsolately in response to a greeting from one of the Scouts.

It is not surprising that year after year the Norman Rockwell Boy Scout calendar is the largest selling calendar in the world. Locally for several years, Emory Mahan of Mahan Motors, has purchased the Rockwell Boy Scout calendar from the publishers.

One Scout leader says enthusiastically: "Norman Rockwell has given life to our movement. He has interpreted our program and ideals for all to see. His boys and leaders have entered millions of homes each year, where they inspire both young and old. What a blessing it will be to have this man 'frame' scouting for years to come."

Norman Rockwell made his first picture for the annual calendar for the Boy Scouts of America in 1925. Since then during every autumn—except for two years he was not available, the National Council of Boy Scouts of America, looks forward to the next year's picture.

Norman Rockwell's annual Boy Scout calendar picture is not only proudly hung on literally millions of walls, but is also reproduced as the cover of one issue of Boy's Life, official Boy Scout magazine. His pictures also have appeared on covers of three editions of the Boy Scout Handbook.

What many Rockwell admirers do not know is that, when he was a young unknown artist, 17 years old in 1911, Rockwell got his first job, working for Boy Scouts of America. Tom Gibson, field reporter for the magazine "Scouting" for adult leaders, recalls that Norman Rockwell illustrated for Boys Life Magazine for nearly three years, and served briefly as art director for that favorite boys' periodical.

When his ability to produce pictures that tell a story was widely recognized, he was commissioned to do the paintings for Boy Scout calendars. They are published by Brown and Bigelow of St. Paul, Minn.

Rockwell really believes in Scouting. His three sons, Jerry, Tommy and Peter, went through the program, and he observed scouting in action. In fact, these boys appeared in several calendars.

Norman Rockwell uses all local talent as models for his calendar boys. Posing sessions last usually an hour. Numerous photographs are made of the model in a variety of positions. The finished picture is a composite of various features.

"I may take his head from one shot, a hand from another, and a bend of his knee from still another photo," Rockwell told Tom Gibson who visited him for his Scouting magazine story.

Strong for realism, Rockwell has kept closely in touch with scouting down through the years. He spent several days, for example, at the 1953 Jamboree, picking up ideas for calendars, and taking scores of photos to capture accuracy of detail which so effectively marks his pictures.

Rockwell has great admiration for Scoutmasters, those volunteers who make scouting go. "I take off my hat to Scoutmasters," he says, "I've seen them at jamborees, I've eaten with their patrols, and I've admired their skill as I watched them work with boys. Those men truly have something. They're the real heroes of scouting."

Giving himself so unstintingly to a cause so widely accepted as scouting, it is not surprising that year after year the Norman Rockwell Boy Scout calendar is the best seller it has come to be.

Norman Rockwell was asked if he has a favorite Scout painting. "No," he laughed, "although I do like some better than others. The most popular ones have been the three or four with a religious flavor. But when it comes to favorites, I tend to agree with a rather corny Picasso comment. He says his favorite painting is the next one he'll be working on."

REMODELED

Extensive remodeling has taken place at Pace's restaurant at 1413 Pennsylvania ave. w. in Warren. The handsome bar has been moved to the front of the popular dining spot to enlarge the rear floor space for tables. The change allows quiet comfort for private parties and families. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pace will find even more pleasure afforded them in the future. (Photo by Mansfield)

Urban and Rural Areas To Get Representation

HARRISBURG — For the first time in Pennsylvania history, soil and water conservation planning will become a joint responsibility of urban and rural areas throughout the state.

City representation now is provided under a new law (House Bill 1511) which was signed by Governor Raymond P. Shafer this month.

Local boards in each of Pennsylvania's 64 conservation districts now will have seven members, instead of five as in the past. The next boards will include four farmer directors, two urban directors, and one county commissioner.

The membership of the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission also will be increased. The new commission will comprise four farmer members and two urban members in addition to the Secretary of Agriculture, who serves as commission chairman, the Secretary of the Department of Forests and Waters, and the dean of the College of Agriculture at The Pennsylvania State University. District directors and commission members all serve without pay.

BUSINESS NOTES

The National Management Association has announced that it has reached the all-time high membership mark of 85,677 for the first time in its 42-year history. The announcement is based on a report to the Association's board of directors and comes as a result of a regular five-year survey recently completed.

Taking part in the compilation of statistics was the Sylvania Management Club of the Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., an organization in the Warren area that has been affiliated with NMA since 1965.

Farmers will spend three per cent more for farm production items in 1968, than in 1967, according to Claude Gifford, agricultural economics and farm policy editor of the Farm Journal, the nation's largest farm magazine. He reports this will establish a new record of more than $35 billion paid by farmers for production items in one year.

Outlays for farm production items purchased from industry in 1968 will exceed the three per cent increase expected in overall farm production expenditures.

The record farm production spending in 1968 will be $10 billion higher than 10 years ago when farm production expenditures totaled $25.2 billion in 1958. This is an increase of 40 per cent.

Farmers are expected to take in a record gross income from all sources (farm and non-farm) in 1968. This will total around $58 billion, compared with $57.1 billion in 1967 and $57.3 billion in 1966, the previous high, according to Gifford.

In his outlook he also reports that both the average gross income per farm and the average production expenditures per farm will set new records next year. The average gross per farm is likely to exceed $18,500 with farmers expected to spend $11,250 per farm for production expenditures and $7,250 per farm for personal family living.

A year ago Farm Journal predicted that the 1967 farm production expenditures would increase more than $1 billion and that spending for family living would decline 5 to 10 per cent.

William H. Lester, Secretary-treasurer of Sugar Grove Farm Supply Co., Sugar Grove, recently attended a product showing of new machines that International Harvester Company plans to introduce in 1968.

The Warren County dealer is setting dates now for a Customer Open House to announce this new equipment locally.

Paul L. Lumnitz, vice president-technical of Pennsylvania Electric Company, has been elected to the grade of Fellow, the highest grade that can be achieved by members of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE).

Lumnitz, a Johnstown resident, was cited "for pioneering contributions in planning and design of extra high voltage transmission systems."

Election of Richard B. Yeager as assistant secretary and Roger A. Geier as controller of American Sterilizer Company has been announced in Erie by V.F. Lechner, president of the firm.

Alfred Akins of Sugar Grove will have the exclusive use of the prefix "Al-Gen" in naming all Registered Holstein dairy animals bred in that herd.

Samuel Marek of Warren, discussed "Development of Vocational Technical Education System" at the recent meeting of the area chapter of the American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers.

Annual College Holiday Festival Opens Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Explosive Boston College and surprisingly solid St. John's University are on another collision course in the ECAC Holiday Festival, which opens Tuesday at Madison Square Garden.

First, however, the Eagles and Redmen must get past tough opponents in the opening doubleheader of the 16th annual college basketball showcase event.

St. John's, which upset the eighth-ranked Eagles 91-90 in an overtime thriller 10 days ago, takes on Syracuse after Bob Cousy's BC club meets Penn State in the 2 p.m., EST, tournament opener. If the once-beaten favorites don't stumble, they'll be rematched in Thursday night's semifinals.

Tuesday night, Louisville goes against LaSalle and Columbia plays West Virginia, completing the first round.

Boston College rebounded after the St. John's setback and swept past North Carolina State and Providence in last week's Boston Garden Christmas Invitational for a 2-1 season mark.

Cousy's last three BC clubs have been 20-game winners but the former Boston Celtics wizard rates this year's team potentially the strongest in his five years as coach. Sharp-shooting Steve Adelman, 6-foot-8 sophomore Terry Driscoll and playmaker Billy Evans are the main cogs in the Eagles' attack.

Evans missed the Eagles' last two games with a leg injury but is expected to be in the line-up Tuesday.

Driscoll scored 46 points against St. John's, but the Redmen prevailed on two free throws by John Warren in the closing seconds of overtime. St. John's then whipped St. Mary's, Calif., for a 6-1 record in what began as a rebuilding year for Coach Lou Carnesecca. Warren, a gifted 6-3 junior, and 6-7 senior Rudy Bogad will lead the Redmen's drive for an unprecedented third Festival crown.

Wes Unseld, Louisville's 6-8, 250-pound All-American, and talented teammate Butch Beard make the Cardinals a strong title threat despite their 4-3 early-season mark.

Leading Syracuse against St. John's will be high-jumping Vaughn Harper and 1,000-point scorer George Hickey. Jeff Persson has averaged 23 points and 11 rebounds per game for Penn State, 2-2.

LaSalle, 5-0, will rely heavily on super-soph Larry Cannon, hailed as another Tom Gola in Philadelphia, and slick Bernie Williams against Louisville's Unseld-Beard combination.

West Virginia, 4-2 with a victory over St. John's, has one of the nation's finest scorers—playmakers in 6-3 Ron Williams, Dave Newark, a 7-foot strongman, and 6-5 soph James McMillan are the standouts for Columbia, which makes its first Festival appearance after a 4-3 season start.

76ers Rally to Nip Baltimore Bullets

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers rallied in the final 90 seconds Monday night to edge the Baltimore Bullets 108-105 in a National Basketball Association game.

Baltimore held a 104-101 lead with 1:25 seconds left, but Philadelphia's Billy Cunningham scored on a three-point play to tie the game.

Hal Greer's two foul shots put the 76ers ahead for good, 106-104 with a minute remaining.

Baltimore's Ray Scott then converted a free throw to cut the margin to one, but Wilt Chamberlain clinched the victory with a layup in the final seconds.

The score was tied 55-55 at halftime.

Cunningham and Greer each scored 27 points to lead the 76ers. Kevin Loughery scored 21 to pace Baltimore, and Jack Marin added 18.

The victory was the fifth straight for Philadelphia while Baltimore had a three-game winning streak snapped.

Celts Whip Knicks for 7th in Row

NEW YORK (AP) — The streaking Boston Celtics won their seventh straight National Basketball Association game Monday night with a strong display of depth, defeating the New York Knickerbockers 134-124.

Sam Jones led the Celtics with 27 points, but Boston's biggest boost came from reserve center Wayne Embry who pumped in 24 while spelling player-coach Bill Russell.

Embry, Bailey Howell, who also had 24, and John Havlicek led a fourth quarter Boston spurt that pulled the Celtics into as much as a 13-point lead. Then Jones helped hold the Knicks off as New York made a belated rally.

Russell sat out much of the second half, saddled by five personal fouls, and finally fouled out late in the fourth period.

Wait Bellamy led New York with 30 points while Dick Van Arsdale had 21 and Cazzie Russell 20 for the Knicks.

Fouls Boost Rockets Over Lakers

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Dave Gambee sank four free throws in the final 17 seconds Sunday to give the San Diego Rockets a come-from-behind 104-101 National Basketball Association game over the Los Angeles Lakers before 6,164.

Gambee put the Rockets ahead 100-99 with 1:09 remaining on a pair of free throws. He was fouled by Laker Tom Hawkins with 17 seconds remaining in the game and converted both shots to increase the San Diego lead to 102-99.

Elgin Baylor drove in for a basket to put the Lakers only one point back with 11 seconds left.

The Lakers went into a full-court press, and Gambee was fouled again—this time by guard Gail Goodrich. He sank both shots to seal the Lakers' doom.

The Rockets trailed at the half 49-44 but took the lead late in the third period by running off eight straight points.

John Block led the winners with 20 points. Toby Kimball had 17 and John McGlocklin, Don Kojis and Gambee each had 15.

Baylor paced the Lakers with 21 points, and Goodrich added 19, all in the second half.

Laker guard Jerry West played only sparingly in the second half after hitting his head on the floor in a scuffle for the ball in the second period.

Rangers Recoup

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The New York Rangers avenged their only loss of the season to a National Hockey League expansion team by defeating the Philadelphia Flyers 3-1 on two power play goals in the second period Monday night.

The Rangers now have a 10-1 record against the NHL's Western Division clubs.

While the northern nimbrod concentrates on the final archery and small game seasons for the year opening this morning, hunters in Louisiana are on the lakes and marshes in search of waterfowl. The 40-day season is just ending and the state's Wildlife and Fish Commission estimated that 3 1/2 million ducks were fair game for the outdoorsmen.

UCLA, HOUSTON STILL LEAD NATION

Cage Poll Leaders Being Pushed by Indiana, Vols

Indiana and Tennessee, another pair of unbeaten teams, moved up just behind high-flying UCLA and Houston Monday in the weekly ratings of The Associated Press' college basketball poll.

UCLA, 5-0, trounced Bradley 100-73 and Notre Dame 114-63 to run its unbeaten streak to 39, tying the second longest winning streak in college history. The Bruins now go gunning for the mark of 60, run up by the San Francisco Dons through 1955.

The Bruins are trailed by Houston's powerhouse, 10-0, Indiana, 6-0, and Tennessee, 4-0. Utah, another unbeaten team, moved into the Top Ten in the No. 7 spot with its 8-0 record.

UCLA received 29 of the 30 first place votes by a national panel of sports writers and sportscasters and 299 points.

Houston, conqueror of Minnesota, Arizona and Nevada Southern during the week, had 263 points, including one first place vote. Points are based on 10 for first, 9 for second, and so on.

Indiana, fifth a week ago, took third with 181 points while Tennessee moved up from ninth to fourth with 167 points.

North Carolina, 4-1, now fifth, was idle last week.

Kentucky, 6-1, advanced from seventh to sixth with 137 points followed by Utah, 99; Davidson, 7-1, 75; Vanderbilt, 7-1, 67; and Boston College, 5-1, 59.

Davidson dropped from sixth to eighth, Vanderbilt from third to ninth following losses to Florida, and Bradley, 8-1, fell out of the Top Ten on its first defeat, by UCLA, Bradley was 10th a week ago.

The experts will get a better line on the high-ranking teams, as well as numerous contenders, in the major tournaments starting this week. All of the leaders, with the exception of Kentucky, will be busy battling for tourney prizes.

Kentucky, which won its own invitational last week by beating South Carolina 76-66, plays Notre Dame at Louisville Saturday.

The Upswingers

(C) N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Like a lot of other eager and shiny-eyed dreamers, the Green Bay Packers whirled toward Christmas eve with visions of sugar plums dancing in their heads. The plums bore a $30,000 price tag and seemed to be dangling within easy reach. The old Packers had looked like the Packers of old in demolishing the formidable Los Angeles Rams a day earlier and the worst appeared over. Only lesser foes were between them and Sugar Bowl riches, or so it looked.

But chilling reality rode the television waves into Green Bay even before Santa's sled had left the North Pole. It blurred the visions and made them seem not as easily reachable. On Christmas eve the Dallas Cowboys emerged from a season-long slump to attain such heights of awesome perfection in stampeding over the Cleveland Browns that the Packers have suddenly become leery of opening the package containing next week's championship game. It might hold a time bomb.

Starting, indeed, were the developments of the past week-end. It wasn't as much who won but how. A fortnight earlier the crippled Bays showed their age against the Rams and were grievously manhandled. This time they were the wily old pros who smothered Los Angeles with both offensive and defensive platoons. In the exhilaration of victory even that arch conservative, Vince Lombardi, described the performance as "magnificent."

The next day the same word was used to describe the Cowboys. It was correctly used in both instances. Dallas was judged as overpowering both ways against the Browns as Green Bay had been. Rams, Don Meredith-injured quarterback, Bart Starr of the Packers and two off-the-field controversies were explicit practitioners of the passing art. Starr hit on 17 of 23 for 222 yards and Meredith on 10 of 12 for 212 yards.

Within the last few weeks several polls were taken and they linger in memory because they seemed to have highly significant aspects. Just before the showdown involving the Colts, Rams and Packers, the question was asked as to which had the best chance of getting to the championship playoff of the National Football League.

The players throughout the league were polled in one vote. Such is the respect they have for Johnny Unitas that the majority picked the Colts. But when the same query was posed to the coaches, they selected the Packers. The wizardry of Lombardi as a coaching genius had to be their sole motivation. There could be no other reason and they were right.

The third poll was somewhat disconcerting. It was taken by members of the New York Jets and was to decide their most valuable player. An outsider would have to assume that Joe Namath would be the overwhelming choice because the Jets are nothing without him. Did he get it? He did not. The honor went to George Satter. But Namath was second, eh? Nope, he was named seventh. On third or fourth or fifth. He was sixth on the list and you can imagine that anyway, you wish.

George Satter and the Jets' first up with a fourth. What it was too late to be them any good they ran all against the powerful San Diego Chargers. Against a nonexistent pass defense Namath completed 18 of 26 for 342 yards and a season's record of 4,007 yards. It won't be as profitable as the championship that was never won but it still will look good in the almanac.

The surging upswing of both Packers and Cowboys makes Sunday's collision in Green Bay a most intriguing matchup. It's a repeat of last year's title show, a harrowing match that saw the Packers barely extinguish a last-minute Dallas rally to win a spine chiller, 34 to 27.

Tom Landry's Texans had had a strong season that year and their key man was Bobby Hayes, the Olympic 100-meter champion of 1954. But Lombardi's satanic defenders slowed him to a bare walk. Hayes caught only one pass and his total gain amounted to exactly one yard.

But in Sunday's joust against the Browns the World's Fastest Human turned in blinding bursts of speed. He returned one punt for 64 yards and another for 65. He caught a Meredith bomb for 86 yards and a touchdown. Like the rest of the Cowboys, the fleet Hayes had an inconsistent season but, like them, he came up with a superior performance at the right time.

Even before the season began Lombardi, usually sparing in his praise, offered an uncharacteristic estimate.

"Wait until you see Travis Williams," he chortled, "he's going to be something."

As usual, Vince was right. Almost as fast as Hayes, the swift Williams set a record for touchdowns and kickoff returns, including one of 104 yards. Because the Packers have been hurtling in the backfield, he's been used ever more frequently as a ball carrier and is starting to pop.

In a post-game interview, the baldish Henry Jordan offered a whimsical comment.

"When you play for Lombardi," he said, "you either get laid or grey." The night also had added, "and rich."

earlier this season. The Red Raiders have defeated Westfield 47-3; Maple Grove, 44-8 and Pine Grove, 43-1.

Curwensville, wrestling in one of the toughest sections of the state, is 3-4. The Golden Tide swept over Brockway, 39-11 before being defeated by powerhouse Altoona, 30-12. Then Lyle Domico's grapplers snapped DuBois' 17-match streak, 29-11 and slipped past always-tough Lock Haven, 25-21.

The host Dragons are 3-0, with victories over Erie Cathedral Prep, Erie East and Erie Strong Vincent.

Jamestown enters the tourney with seven undefeated matmen: Tom Duckett (95), Mike Young (103), Ray Hodnett (112) Ed Morales (137) Randy Bloomquist (154), Tom Roselle (180) and Bernie Jones (heavyweight). Kittanning is next in the unbeaten parade with five: Chester Stockhill (95), Mike Shaffer (133), John Carroll (138), Dan Roofner (165) and Terry Claypoole (180).

Curwensville, like Warren, has four wrestlers who have yet to taste defeat: Gib Bressler (133), John Appleton (154), Chris Laddo (165) and Bob Strickland (180).

For the Dragons, Dane Sorensen (112), Doug Sorensen (127), Jim Mead (133) and Mike Maines (145) sport unbeaten marks.

First round pairings will be announced tomorrow.

Officials for the tourney are Ed Sinnott, Bob Mulvin and Corky Latimer.

Individual trophies will be awarded to champions and runners-up, with the winning team and its coach also receiving trophies.

Los Angeles Edged 4-3 By Penguins

Tom Landry Glad to Meet 'Bays

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Coach Tom Landry of the surging Dallas Cowboys said Monday his team had played its best game ever when the stakes were considered and that he was glad to meet Green Bay again for the National Football League championship.

"We came close to a perfect game in the 51-14 victory over Cleveland when we won the Eastern Conference championship Sunday," Landry observed. "I won't say we played the best in our history but we did play the best when you consider what we were playing for and the importance of the game."

The Cowboys return to practice Tuesday and will work through Friday morning, flying to Appleton, Wis., a town near Green Bay, Friday afternoon.

"I am glad to get to play Green Bay for the championship again," Landry said. "Green Bay is considered the best in pro football and to be worthy champions you must beat the best."

Dallas lost to the Packers 34-27 last year for the NFL championship. In fact, the Cowboys never have beaten Green Bay in league play in their eight years of NFL membership.

Twice the Cowboys managed to clip Green Bay in pre-season games but when the chips were on the line, couldn't quite make it against the mighty Packers. Dallas has met Green Bay only four times in league competition, eight times in exhibitions.

Ted Irvine put the Kings in front again at the 8:32 mark when he went down the ice with Lowell MacDonald on a 2-on-1 breakaway and beat goalie Les Binkley with a hard 20-footer.

Then came Bathgate's first goal on a power play while the Kings' Dave Amadio was serving a hooking penalty. Bathgate intercepted a pass and blasted a slap shot from the left which goalie Wayne Rutledge couldn't handle at 17:13 of the period.

One minute later, he set up Ubricaco for a short scoring shot to put the Penguins in front to stay.

Bathgate added another goal at 3:20 of the final period. MacDonald matched that one at 4:14 when his long shot bounced over Binkley's stick.

Back to Gator Practices For Penn St., Seminoles

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — After Christmas away from home for Penn State and Florida State football players, the teams go back to work Tuesday for their meeting in the 23rd annual Gator Bowl game Saturday.

At Tallahassee, Coach Bill Peterson will bring his Seminoles back to practice field realities after five days off.

"We'll work twice Wednesday and again Thursday morning at home before going to Jacksonville," Peterson said. "I haven't pushed them as hard as I would during the regular season, but that was because they haven't needed it."

Coach Joe Paterno gave his Penn State Nittany Lions Christmas day off at Daytona Beach, where they have been working the past week.

"It's hard to miss Christmas with their families," he said. "We can't replace that, but giving them a day off and a special gift-giving party we were able to make them feel as much at home as possible."

The Penn State coach, asked to evaluate his key players in the 8-2 season which sent the team into the bowl game as the best in the East, listed quarterback Tom Sherman, tight end Ted Kwalick and split end Jack Curry on offense; safety Tom Montgomery, tackle Mike Mc. Bath and linebacker Dennis Onkotz on defense.

"You have a tendency to forget Curry," Paterno said.

"He's not big, strong or fast. He's just a little squirt (180 pounds) getting the job done for us. He's got intelligence, the competitive instinct and an ability to anticipate his opponent's moves."

Sherman is the man who came through big after a spotty junior season in 1966.

"He is the real good quarterback we had to have to make this a good team," Paterno said. "He's a good passer, good ball handler and a real leader."

Kwalick is a great football player, as everyone agrees. He made second string All-American and could play split end as well as tight end.

"We made him a tight end to take advantage of his strong blocking," the coach said. "He's just a great football player who loves to play. Why, he even loves to practice."

Montgomery, as defensive signal caller, is credited with saving half a dozen touchdowns by his key interceptions and tackles.

McBath is a steady, dependable tackle with good speed.

Onkotz has a knack of making the big play. He scored three touchdowns — two with long runs after interceptions and one on a punt return.

AT JAMESTOWN FETE

Penn State Coach Joe Paterno has been added to the list of guests at the annual Men's Club Sports Dinner at Jamestown next month. Widely-known and respected in this area, Paterno coached the Nittany Lions to an 8-2 season, the Lambert Trophy and a berth in Saturday's Gator Bowl.

Lanman's Grid 'Rug' Cuts Down Injuries

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Sixty-seven football games involving more than 2,500 players hours were contested this year on Harvey Lanman's rug with no signs of wear and not one serious injury.

Nine games on the "rug"—Seattle's pet name for the new AstroTurf in its Memorial Stadium — were professional contests. The rest were high school games and, in one stretch of four, neither a trainer nor doctor went on the field to treat an injured player. Things reached such a state of goodness, says city athletic director Lanman, there weren't even any badly hurt kids in the hospital this year to enjoy the floral displays left over from the annual banquet. Lanman claims "I stuck my neck out a mile" when he replaced the stadium's gravelly mud with synthetic grass last summer, but today he's the most popular man in town with football fans, mothers, players and coaches.

A heavy, outdoor version of the Houston AstroTurf's "lawn," the material has been installed at only one other uncovered site—Indiana State University's stadium in Terre Haute, Ind.

College and professional team representatives arrived by the dozen each weekend this fall to walk on the Lanman grass and watch teams in action on the bright green surface. The visitors may have thought, incorrectly, that Lanman was on the Monsanto Company payroll, so enthusiastic is he over the rug in the 12,000-seat stadium.

once the AstroTurf was installed. The regular shoe with long, heavy cleats did not give the purchase needed for quick turns. By midseason Lanman's experiments proved a soccer shoe with a multitude of nubbin cleats was perfect—and cost about one-fifth the price of a football shoe.

Fans love the rug. Games run 20 minutes shorter due to fewer time outs. The painted lines remain sharp and clear and the players' numbers are always readable, even in heavy rain.

The 14-school city league has two other playing sites, one sand, one grass, but coaches are so anxious to play on the rug they have offered to get their players up for morning games.

"Now the kids can do in a game what they've been taught all week, without being balked by changing field conditions," said veteran referee Francis "Pop" Haggerty.

Players say: "Softer than dirt but you have more traction." "Better than grass." "Past and soft to land on." "Like playing on the living room carpet." "Better than mud?"

Laundering uniforms is the chore of football mothers. In the old days the more thoughtful player would stand fully dressed in the stadium showers to wash away the mud before taking the uniform home. This helped Mother but it plugged the drains.

The 1967 football mother regards the title "Lanman's Rug" as drably unattractive. She likes to think of it as Harvey's Magic Carpet.

DUFFY CALLS 'EM!

Change in Rule May Mean More Fumbles

By DUFFY DAUGHERTY
Head Football Coach
Michigan State University

Some new rules are likely to be proposed when the NCAA meets in New York in mid-January but it might be better for college football to leave the rules as they are.

There has been some talk about tampering with the 25-second rule. That is the time in which a team must put the ball in play after the referee spots the ball and blows his "play ball" whistle.

Some former coaches who are now fine athletic directors suggest making it a 20-second rule because generally the average for putting the ball in play is 17 seconds.

To change the 25-second rule would place a greater burden on the offense and on the officials. Both would have to work harder and faster than they now work. To shorten the time now permitted would lower the caliber of college football. It takes time to put out flankers and split ends after a team leaves the huddle. And the quarterback must have a breather in order to check off his plays, his offensive and the shifting alignment of certain defenses.

Shortening the time allowed would see so many broken plays that fumbles could become a regular occurrence. The game could become more rugby than football.

The Rules Committee is anxious to make the game as entertaining as possible but changes should NOT be made for the sake of change.

We have NO complaints with the punting rule used for the first time this year. Most coaches, including this one, had an apprehension of injury when the punting team's interior linemen were forced to hold their ground until the ball was punted.

We thought there would be more incidence of knee injuries because there figured to be more blocking from the side. But thank goodness knee injuries were minimized this year because coaches devised methods with a player's safety in mind.

Some moved their punter back one yard and others ordered higher punts to prevent long run-backs behind a wall of blockers. The run-back yardage on punts increased but there were fewer spectacular returns than the Rules Committee anticipated.

While the new punting rule cut down the number of fair catches the dead plays increased because more punts went out-of-bounds to prevent the run-back.

I think most coaches agree that it probably will be best to give the present punting rule another year or so before we can make a true appraisal.

Coaching a college football team is a difficult job at best, but it's even tougher to make all members of your squad, including new sophomores, aware of the rule changes. Constant rule changes mean new coaching philosophy.

If the Rules Committee cares to make a change they might

CREG LANDRY SPARKS YANKEES

North Rips South, 24-0

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Quarterback Greg Landry of Massachusetts led the North on two scoring drives Monday and the Yankees swamped the South 24-0 in the Shrine's College All-Star football game.

Outshining the North's other quarterback, John Cartwright of Navy, Landry directed the South 48 yards to a second perod touchdown and 93 yards to another in the final quarter.

The Yankees had to go only 11 yards for their other touchdown following a pass interception by Dennis Coyne of Northwestern. A 46-yard field goal by Dale Livingston of Western Michigan completed the scoring in an unexciting game played before an audience of 17,400.

After the North had muffed two good scoring opportunities after a fumble recovery and a pass interception, Landry went in for Cartwright in the second and quickly moved the North in for a score.

He hit John Wright of Illinois with two passes covering 45 yards, connected with Bill Dowd of Navy for 10, then threw a two-yard scoring shot to Bob Baltzell of Purdue.

An interception by Coyne off Mike Livingston of Southern Methodist—his third steal of the game—set up the North's second touchdown. He returned 23 yards to the South 11, and Dwight Lee of Michigan State scored from the three.

Oscar Reed of Colorado State University ran two yards for the last touchdown after the North's long drive in the fourth period.

Coyne was voted the North's most valuable player. Defensive end Gordon Lambert of Tennessee-Martin was named best for the South.

But the favorite of the crowd was Eldridge Dickey of Tennessee A—I, who sparked the South in its best offensive advances. The crowd once chanted for his return when he was taken out in favor of Livingston.

Packers Enjoy Rest Before Title Clash

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The defending champions of the National Football League still are feeling too good about their conquest of the favored Los Angeles Rams to do much thinking yet about the Dallas Cowboys.

Coach Vince Lombardi gave his Green Bay Packers a two-day holiday after their 28-7 triumph Saturday over the Rams for the NFL's Western Conference crown. Blueprint work for the Packers-Cowboys league title showdown Sunday in Green Bay was not to begin until Tuesday.

Ram quarterback Roman Gabriel was thrown for losses five times, four times by Jordan. Guard Jerry Kramer, who has shared in six Western Conference championships, said of the Ram game: "I don't believe anyone in the world wanted this game more than I did."

"It came down to the same old story—desire. You can never afford to let success spoil you," he said.

Willie Davis, a member of Green Bay's defensive front four, called it "the day of reckoning for us. When we got the lead, we just vowed we wouldn't let them get it back."

Blue, Gray Squads Work Out Xmas Day

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Christmas or not, North and South coaches sent their players back to the practice field Monday to get ready for Saturday's Blue-Gray football game.

Vince Dooley of Georgia, top man on the Gray coaching staff, and Tulsa's Glenn Dobbs, the Yankees' head coach, said they were pleased with Sunday's

Limited Drills For Shrine Contest Teams

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Workouts for the Shrine East-West football game were shortened Monday so players could take time for their joint Christmas dinner.

But what work was done indicated that passing and how to stop it are the problems facing the coaching staffs.

Coach Ben Martin of the Air Force schooled his West team at Stanford University in throwing the ball. In the main was quarterback Gary Beban of UCLA, a graduate of nearby Sequoia High School who won the 1967 Heisman Trophy.

The West drilled for 1 1/2 hours while getting ready for the Dec. 30 game at San Francisco's Candlestick Park, but coach Martin said the team would go back to two-a-day workouts Tuesday.

Martin also had Danny Holman of San Jose State passing the ball as he attempted to figure a way to score on the East in the game that benefits the Shrine hospitals for crippled children.

At Santa Clara University, coach Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame drilled his East team in how to stop passes. Standouts in that drill were two linebackers—Jim Bevans of Army and Randall Edmunds of George Tech.

Pete Gent Out For Title Game

DALLAS (AP) — Flanker Pete Gent of the Dallas Cowboys suffered a broken ankle in the final quarter of Sunday's 52-14 rout over Cleveland for the National Football League's Eastern Conference title.

Gent will miss next Sunday's NFL championship game against Green Bay, the Western Conference champ, and a possible Super Bowl battle should Dallas beat the Packers.

Gent, a four-year pro, is a reserve, playing behind Bob Hayes.

Killy Honored

PARIS (AL) — Jean-Claude Killy, who dominated the field in Alpine skiing last season and won the first World Cup for men, was named Monday the top French sports figure of the year by L'Equipe, Paris daily sports newspaper.

Two Resign Chargers' Grid Staff

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Tom Bass, defensive coordinator for the San Diego Chargers, resigned Sunday following the team's 42-31 loss to the New York Jets.

End coach Harry Johnson also left the staff Sunday. He had submitted his resignation earlier to Charger head Coach Sid Gillman.

The Charger defensive squad gave up an average of 25 points per game this season while the team finished third in the Western Division of the American Football League. Last season's average was 20 points.

Bass did not cite the Charger defensive record in announcing his resignation.

Gillman said Bass was departing voluntarily and wished him luck.

Johnson, while praising Gillman and the Charger coaching staff, was somewhat more explicit in his reason for leaving. Of Gillman, he said:

"Our differences are in communication and human relations. I was not successful in improving either of these areas, which I consider to be the most important in any field."

A CALL to CLERGYMEN and LAYMEN In Whose Name?

Death, destruction, and despair have been heaped upon the Vietnamese people in the name of freedom and democracy—in the name of America!

By what kind of moral calculus can any human being condone the following...

- 2,000,000 South Vietnamese, or almost one eighth of the population, have become official refugees. Hundreds of thousands more have been displaced.
- 110,960 tons of napalm have been dropped over South Vietnam since the end of 1963.
- 150,000 acres of crop-producing land as well as 500,000 acres of jungle and brush have been defoliated by 5 million gallons of herbicide in 1967 alone.
- None of the 43 provincial hospitals is "considered up to minimum standards for a developing country in Southeast Asia," according to Sen. Edward Kennedy.
- Since 1961 more than 300,000 Vietnamese and American military personnel have been killed while a conservative estimate would place civilian death at approximately four times that figure.

The blood we shed in Vietnam makes a mockery of all our proclamations, dedications, celebrations. Has our conscience become a fossil? Is all mercy gone?

Join us in Washington, D.C. on February 5 & 6, 1968 to visit with congressmen in this "political" year, to meet by states to talk tactically about increased opposition to the Vietnamese war, and to make clear our concern for young men of draft age who in conscience cannot fight in Vietnam. Remember, the blood of the innocent cries forever. Should that blood stop to cry, humanity will cease to be.

Hussein Finds Himself In Difficult Position

(c) N.Y. Times News Service BEIRUT—King Hussein of Jordan has recognized that this winter is crucial for the Arab-Israeli question, at least as far as his own kingdom is concerned.

He is in the precarious position of being damned by his own people if he does not find a settlement and equally damned if he accepts a compromise solution. But some sort of compromise seems to be the only realistic way out, because he and his Arab allies are not strong enough to drive out the Israeli occupying forces.

The terrible frustration of the Arabs and what westerners re-

Johnson's Trip Called Funeral For U.S. Policy

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Monday likened President Johnson's Australian trip to a funeral for U.S. policy in Vietnam and said few countries supported the policy.

Leonid N. Zamyatin, chief of the Foreign Ministry's press section, said the trip "was like a funeral service for American policy in Vietnam. It started as a funeral service for the late prime minister of Australia, and it came out as a funeral service for U.S. policy in Vietnam."

Answering newsmen's questions after a news conference on 30 years of Soviet foreign policy, Zamyatin charged that Johnson tries to pretend that U.S. policy has widespread support.

But in fact, the Soviet official said, only the Saigon government and very few others support this policy.

He was referring to Johnson's bilateral talks in Australia with U.S. allies in the Vietnam war. Johnson held the talks with allied leaders who had come to Australia for memorial services for Harold E. Holt.

Radio Peking Boasts of Six Nuclear Tests in Red China

TOKYO (AP) — Radio Peking boasted of six nuclear tests carried out in Red China since 1964 but said nothing about a low-power explosion which the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said it had detected from the Chinese testing area of Lop Nor Sunday.

The lack of an announcement from Peking raised speculation something might have gone wrong. Announcements and celebrations have followed all past Chinese tests in a matter of hours.

The AEC said the Christmas Eve blast in China was equal to the explosion of 20,000 tons of TNT, roughly the power of the atomic bomb the United States dropped on Hiroshima in 1945. The low yield of the explosion could indicate it had been carried to a target on the head of a medium-range missile.

The Washington announcement Sunday was just two sentences long, reporting the power of the blast in the atmosphere and where it had taken place.

After the Peking broadcast Monday, a spokesman in Washington said the AEC would stand on its original announcement without elaboration. He declined comment on the Chinese silence about the blast.

The Peking broadcast, in Japanese, mentioned six successful tests "from 1964 through 1967." The sixth was carried out June 17.

"The Chinese people certainly have the chance and the capability to catch up with and surpass the world's advanced standards in nuclear-bomb development in the not distant future," the broadcast said.

After Red China's first test in 1964, the radio added, Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung came up with "new militant duties" for the Chinese people to carry out.

"It was the only right policy for China to develop its defense technique with a faster tempo," the broadcast said without elaboration.

In the past, Peking announced its nuclear tests within 10 hours of detonation.

Japanese correspondents in Peking reported there was no announcement Monday of a test.

The correspondents noted that newspapers published special editions after the six previous tests, and there were street celebrations almost immediately.

Radio Peking said Mao had predicted in 1958 that China would have atomic and hydrogen bombs in 10 years or so. "His prediction has become a complete reality," it said.

The radio devoted most of its

MEETS POPE

President Johnson met Pope Paul VI in Vatican City Dec. 23. The Pope offered his help in finding a peaceful settlement for the Vietnam war, but made no mention of his meeting with Johnson nor of the war in his annual Christmas message to the people.

Pope Paul Issues Appeal To Avoid the Easy Life

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI remained inside Vatican City this Christmas to pray for peace and bestow his traditional yuletide blessing on the world. He appealed for man to avoid the easy life and seek peace in true Christian values.

The pontiff, now 70, skipped his usual Christmas procedure of saying one of his three Masses in a church outside the Vatican. This was passed over this year apparently to ease the strain on the Pope who underwent a prostate operation last month.

From the front balcony of St. Peter's Basilica the Pope gave his annual Christmas noonday speech and bestowed his blessing.

His midday Mass this year, in the Sistine Chapel was for diplomats accredited to the Vatican. He said morning Mass in his private chapel. Then he celebrated another in St. Peter's Basilica just before going at noon to the loggia overlooking the square.

As he spoke in Italian to the crowd in the square he looked fatigued. But his voice was firm and strong.

He said man needed Christian values to find peace within himself.

He said: "Today in many quarters there is a frenzy of happiness, of intensity of enjoyment, of carefree living. Happiness is confused with pleasure, and pleasure with satiety of earthly fulfillment. Even work, the most noble form of human activity, tends sometimes to end in a hedonistic well-being which thus discredits it and empties it of meaning."

A truly Christian way of life sometimes diminishes profane joys but brings greater satisfaction, he said.

True happiness cannot exist without peace in the hearts of men and peace among men, he declared and added: "Our wish today is united indeed with the renewed wish for peace . . . Let it now be our prayer for you and for the world, as even in these days our anxiety, our cares and our hopes have centered on peace."

President Lin Shao-chi insisted that Red China should be protected by the Soviet nuclear umbrella while Mao contended that China should build nuclear weapons on its own.

The results China has achieved in the development of its military technique has contributed to "the liberation of the mankind as well as to the defense of the country."

commentary to repeating what Peking had said in the past:

— Communist China's fast development of nuclear weapons is "a great victory of Chairman Mao's thought."

— The United States and the Soviet Union "have colluded" in their attempt to "contain and destroy" Communist China ever since it succeeded in its first nuclear test.

— President Lin Shao-chi insisted that Red China should be protected by the Soviet nuclear umbrella while Mao contended that China should build nuclear weapons on its own.

Thousands of Pilgrims Crowd Into Holy Land for Christmas

BETHLEHEM (AP) — Thousands of pilgrims crowded into Bethlehem Monday, despite Arab guerrilla threats, and celebrated Christmas in this Judean hilltop town where the New Testament says Christ was born.

Israeli soldiers, who had protected Bethlehem Sunday, withdrew despite an act of sabotage that the army blamed on Arabs.

Live radio broadcasts of a midnight Mass by the patriarch of Jerusalem were interrupted about 1 a.m. Monday when telephone cables connecting Bethlehem with Jerusalem were cut. Service was restored shortly thereafter.

After midnight Mass, the Latin patriarch of Jerusalem, Msgr. Alberto Gori, led a procession and placed an effigy of the infant Jesus in a grotto which Christians believe marks the spot where the Christ child lay in a manger.

As dawn broke on a cold and gloomy day over Bethlehem, bells pealed from the Greek Orthodox Basilica of the Nativity to begin Orthodox services. Then low Masses were celebrated at the Franciscan Chapel of the Manger in the grotto beneath the Orthodox Basilica.

About 9,000 pilgrims, including Americans and other foreigners, were in town, far below the 20,000 expected. Few Christian Arabs from Israel were on hand.

Many Arabs used the occasion to visit friends and relatives in what was then West Jordan. But since the June war between Israel and the three Arab states — Jordan, Egypt and Syria — the barbed-wire barriers have been cleared away, and Arabs are free to go anywhere in occupied Jordan.

The first Christmas celebrated in Bethlehem under Israeli rule was marred somewhat by petty bickering.

Local Arabs had asked Msgr. Gori not to recognize Israeli authorities by participating in the celebrations. He went ahead anyway.

Israeli police had to lay down the law, when local dignitaries argued around the patriarch when he arrived here, as to who should ride with him in his car.

Even Israeli attempts to brighten the gloomy outlook backfired. Arabs claimed the six Christmas trees the Israelis gave the town were an insult because they symbolized the star of David's six points. Others said they represented the six days in the June war.

But in some quarters the Israelis and their organizing of Christmas won grudging praise.

Bethlehem Mayor Elias Bandak, a Christian Arab, said: "Things went smoothly, and I have no complaints. I believe the weather had a bad effect on the number of pilgrims. I think it was unfortunate that continuous rain was forecast. And it never rained, but the pilgrims didn't come, either."

There were some complaints from pilgrims about the gun-toting Israelis patrolling inside the Holy City Sunday.

"Naturally," said Bandak, "some security precautions had to be taken. And perhaps this had an effect on the pilgrims."

Also having an effect on the Bethlehem people was the closed-circuit television of the midnight Mass. For many it was the first time they had seen the Mass — or television.

Bus loads of tourists began arriving during the morning, and most made directly for the Church of the Nativity where Msgr. Gori celebrated a High Pontifical Mass. Others browsed in Arab shops, to the delight of the shopkeepers who had complained about poor business.

Lawmakers Vote "Yes" on All But One of 25 Major Bills

Warren County lawmakers voted "yes" on all but one of the 25 major bills placed before the House of Representatives and the Senate during the final two weeks of the 1967 legislative session held Dec. 11 through Dec. 21, in Harrisburg.

In the House, Rep. William A. Allen voted "yes" on 13 of the 14 bills acted on.

The affirmative votes were for bills which included increasing and further regulating compensation payments under the State Workmen's Compensation Act; establishing a new minimum wage scale for Pennsylvania, creating a minimum wage advisory board; increasing the capital stock and franchise tax; increasing tax on gross receipts of utilities; increasing percent tax on shares of capital stock of banks and savings institutions; increasing state sales tax; reducing the restaurant meal exemption on state sale tax; amendments to the "Penal Code"; a bill requiring the State Department of Internal Affairs to maintain a record on the ownership of tax exempt land in the state; a bill providing a merger and consolidation on authorities leasing projects to the same reorganized school district, and a bill authorizing the charge of a premium for a mortgage loan in addition to interest and other charges permitted by law.

Rep. Allen cast a negative vote on a bill which would authorize the state and counties to preserve, acquire or hold land for "open spaces" use. All but the bill authorizing the charge of a premium for a mortgage loan in addition to interest and other lawful charges were passed during the final legislative session.

In the Senate, 11 major bills were passed, with Sen. Richard C. Frame voting yes on all 11.

Bills acted on and passed by the Senate included a joint resolution proposing limitation on legislative sessions to six months duration; an amendment to the "Public School Code," removing limitations on the accumulation and use of sick leave; regulating the cancellation of, or refusal to renew, automobile insurance; increasing capital stock and franchise tax; increasing the tax on gross receipts of utilities; increasing the tax on shares of capital stock of banks and savings institutions; increasing the state inheritance tax; increasing the tax on liquor; a bill prohibiting school directors from doing business with the school district in which serving as a director; increasing state sales tax; and the bill reducing the restaurant meal exemption on the state sales tax.

Red Cross Renews Appeal For Blood Donors Dec. 27

Residents of Warren County are reminded by officials of the local Red Cross blood program that the Bloodmobile will be in Warren December 27 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Regular donors who have not given a unit of blood in the past three months, new donors, and college students home for the holidays are urged to participate in this vital Red Cross program. Students between the age of 18-20 are required to have a parent's release to give blood. The release forms may be obtained at Chapter Headquarters, 404 Market street.

The need for whole blood this holiday season, on the basis of previous years, will be greater than ever, and the back log of blood for Warren County is at a new low. For this reason, it is vital that the Red Cross has sufficient volunteer blood donors to fill the necessary blood quota.

Two Warren Physicians Named by State Society

HARRISBURG — Two members of the Warren County Medical Society will hold posts of leadership during 1968 in the public and professional service activities of the Pennsylvania Medical Society. The State Society represents more than 12,000 physician-members.

Dr. Robert D. Donaldson, of Warren has been reelected a district censor and will serve on a "regional court" in matters concerning physician membership, practice and ethics. He was elected at the annual meeting of the state society in Philadelphia.

Dr. Ross E. Bryan, Jr., of Warren has been appointed to the Commission on Rural Health, a group of physicians seeking ways to improve health care in rural Pennsylvania and to facilitate the placement of physicians in rural communities.

The appointment of Dr. Bryan was announced by Dr. John H. Harris, Sr., of Harrisburg, president of the state society.

The Pennsylvania Medical Society is the state-wide organization of medical doctors. It carries out programs in health education to the public and continuing scientific education to physicians. It serves as the instrument through which Commonwealth physicians join together to improve health care in Pennsylvania.

Church Library Expands With Aid of Bequest

For some time, as the First Presbyterian Church circulating library has expanded, it had been hoped to establish it in a room with adequate space. The change has now been made possible by funds bequeathed to the church by Miss Gertrude Slater. She also gave her personal library to the church. A room adjoining Memorial Parlors, with access onto the main hallway of the Christian Education building has been utilized. New book stacks, reading tables, desks and storage cabinets have been installed.

The library is constantly growing, with memorial books and gift books being added all the time.

Pastor Donald E. Spencer says many contribute funds in memory of friends or loved ones, and the church selects new books for the library, while others select their own gift volumes.

Memorial volumes bear special bookplates, giving the names of those in whose memory they are given, as well as the donor.

Christians Throughout the World Forget Crises, War and Worry on Christmas Day

Christians of the world forgot war, crises and worry Monday to celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ.

Except in Vietnam, where U.S. troops had hot turkey dinners, then went back to war after a 24-hour Christmas truce expired.

For the first few hours, at least, they were spared the ordeal of battle. During the 24-hour truce, the U.S. Command in Saigon reported one American soldier and 28 Communists killed in shooting incidents it said the enemy had provoked.

On another front, U.S. soldiers manning the western sector of the 151-mile Korean demilitarized zone spent a quiet Christmas day in their foxholes.

Like other American soldiers elsewhere among the 50,000 U.S. troops stationed in South Korea, they had hot turkey dinner. Their comrades behind the front line gave Christmas dinners and parties for orphans, school children and the poor.

In Bethlehem, about 9,000 pilgrims celebrated Christmas with religious ceremonies in the town where Christians say Christ was born. Israeli troops, guarding the town from threats from Arab guerrillas Sunday, withdrew.

There was only one incident in the Holy Land to mar the day.

Saboteurs cut the telephone cables between Bethlehem and Jerusalem, cutting off a live broadcast of a Christmas Mass in Bethlehem. The line was quickly restored.

Pope Paul VI bestowed his annual Christmas blessing to the world and the city of Rome from the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica as a crowd of 200,000 listened in St. Peter's Square below.

Prayers for peace also were said in Bethlehem services and in churches around the world. Americans at home prayed for the safe return of husbands, sons and brothers from Vietnam.

In her annual Christmas message to the British Commonwealth, Queen Elizabeth II struck a somber note. Her annual broadcast said Britain was "faced with formidable problems— but let there also be no doubt she will overcome them."

Despite raining rain,

Frenchmen celebrated Christmas by spending large amounts of francs for caviar, lobster, foie gras and champagne. President Charles de Gaulle spent the holidays at his estate in Colombes les deux Eglises in eastern France.

Soldiers from the U.S. carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt and other ships of the 6th Fleet spent Christmas in Cannes, winter resort on the French Riviera. In nearby Monte Carlo, Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco entertained officers of the U.S. destroyer Putnam.

Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Roman Catholic primate of Communist Poland, declared in a Christmas sermon in Warsaw that there could be no internal peace unless the government "stops limitations in the building of churches."

The Christmas spirit invaded largely Moslem Egypt. Cairo's large Christian minority enjoyed the capital with Christmas decorations and merriment.

In Buenos Aires the temperature stood at 91 degrees, but this is not unusual. It is the beginning of summer there.

Council to Meet

Warren borough council meets in adjourned session at 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Among the matters to be considered at the meeting is the resolution adopting the 1968 budget, which has been available for viewing at the office of the borough manager.

Council will also hear a resolution adopting the wage and salary schedule for next year. Two readings are scheduled of an ordinance levying taxes and fixing the tax rate for 1968 and annually thereafter.

Also up for two readings is an ordinance, levying the per capita tax for the coming year.

Lamplighters

Christmas may be over, but the holiday lights will be turned on and off through December 31. Today's Jaycee lamplighters are Bill Coddington and Ron Quici sail.

Salons Echo With Accents
As Varied as The U.N.

By Angela Taylor
(c) N. Y. Times News Service
New York — Like its immigrants, New York's hairdressers have come from one European country after the other. At first, they were mainly French and answered to names like Marcel or Henri. Then the Italians took over, and salons sprouted Espresso machines as fast as potted plants. A couple of years ago, it was Britain's turn to export its talent and cockney-flavored English rang musically in customer's ears. Currently, a woman has a choice of languages and European hairdressing. The new crop of salons echoes with accents as varied as a United Nations meeting. There is, for instance, Spanish at the Lupe Salon, 149 East 72d street. Lupe Zequeira was born in Spain and raised in Havana, where his father was a lawyer attached to the presidential palace. Lupe is currently busy coiffuring young engaged girls such as Laurie Harris (who is the niece of Mrs. Anne McDonnell Ford) and Fernanda Wamamaker Wetherill (who is to be married to David Niven's son, James) for their party rounds. He likes to do Winterhalter curls, pinning them at each side or in back. The beauty salon at Bergdorf Goodman, already polyglot, has added another language, Dutch. Its newest star is Christian Houtenbos, 22, the eldest of 12 children of an Amsterdam hairdresser. Christian came to New York via Curacao in the Netherlands West Indies, where he coiffured tourists in a hotel salon. His own curly hairdo translates into a charming feminine version — complete with side-

Male Socialites Must Face
Holiday Problems This Year

NEW YORK—"It's a problem you have to put up with if you have friends," said Edwin M. Burke Jr., whose problems in these two weeks probably included attending the second Junior Assembly, the Debutante Cotillion and Christmas Ball, the International Debutante Ball and any number of private parties.

But, like many other potential escorts for the socially qualified young women who will be coming out, the 21-year-old Princeton University senior made other plans for his Christmas vacation.

"I'll be skiing in St. Moritz," explained the son of Edwin M. Burke, owner of L. V. Ludlow & Co., Far Hills, N.J., concern with real estate, lumber and investment interests.

There was nothing complicated about the manner in which Burke or any of the other young men were selected to accompany the girls to the balls and to dine and dance with them. The main complications were in getting them to put on the much-reviled white tie and tails—and even to get them to accept the invitations.

Most of the youths are listed in the social register and generally have known the girls, also listed in the register, for some time. The girls almost always do the inviting themselves, usually, by tradition, asking two youths to act as escorts. The women who run the events consider it nice for the debutantes to have an escort on either side during dinner.

Many a young damsel in distress has been known to call on an old friend—either a personal acquaintance or a friend of the family—at the last minute.

This approach to snaring an escort can, within limits, be quite effective. A frequent escort from Far Hills, N.J., who wished to remain anonymous, described one of those limits: "If a girl is a friend of mine, I'll do it for her," he explained. "If she's a friend of my family I won't. The girls my family knows are all dogs."

Changing times have left their imprint on the once cloistered old-line debutante balls. In the opinion of many who have acted as escorts, the parties are no longer the best places to meet girls.

Adrian Lambert Jr., 20, a Boston University freshman, has been head of the floor committee for the Grosvenor Debutante Ball for the last two years and his mother heads the ball's dance committee. But the student, son of an eminent New York surgeon, concedes: "there are better places to meet girls."

He reeled off names like Friday's Maxwell's Plum, Mr. Laff's and Little John, all of them East Side Manhattan bars favored by the younger set.

One benefit of escort duties, young Lambert said, is that it can save "a guy a lot of money." Costs for the evening vary from year to year as well as from ball to ball, but this year they have ranged anywhere from $20 for the girl and her two escorts at the Junior League to about $150 for the girl, her parents and two escorts for the two Junior Assemblies and to about $2,000 for the Grosvenor, with its two tables of 10 people each, comprising the girl, her parents, escorts and anyone else she might want to invite. The price includes a champagne dinner.

If the Shoe Fits...
James R. Valone

I have heard of one "sure cure". It works sometimes. Holding the leg straight by grasping the knee, your fingers behind the knee cause the foot to relax in much the same way as placing your finger under your nose stops a sneeze. That doesn't always work either.

In the store we find that most shoe-fighting babies stop fighting when we put on larger shoes. It is not the shoes that babies dislike but the smallness of them. Your baby can't explain reasons for disliking her shoes but they are her feet and she is probably a good authority on the question of whether or not her toes are cramped.

LIVE IT UP!

AND LET GAS SAVINGS
FOOT THE BILL

People who like to spend money (for other things besides electric bills) seem to have more money to spend once they're in an All-Gas Home. So will you. The clean, fresh-air gas heat costs about a third of what you have to spend for flameless heat. On heating bills alone, Gas puts hundreds of dollars back in your pocket every year. If you live in an All-Gas Home, you'll save half the cost of cooking with kilowatts. Drying clothes with Gas will cost you one fifth as much, water heating, just one-third as much as with electricity. Every place you use Gas will make your savings mount higher. A Gas whole-house air conditioning system, for example, not only costs less than electric to operate, but lasts about twice as long. Over the years, an All-Gas Home can save you thousands of dollars. Plenty to spend living it up on a dream vacation, for a new car or two or on whatever your heart desires. Next time you're thinking of building, buying or renting a home, make sure it's all-Gas—all savings. Then think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My girl friend Alma and I were like sisters. We have known each other since grade school. Now we are sophomores in high school.

Last week Alma and I exchanged sweaters, not for keeps, just to wear. When I took off Alma's beige colored sweater I was shocked to discover it had turned orange under the arms. When I returned it, Alma got very upset and said, "Why didn't you tell me you sweat like a horse?" I thought this was a very uncalculated remark and said so. She then told me that the sweater was completely ruined and I owed her $8.

The sweater has a slight rip under one sleeve and the collar is shot. I would not exactly call it a rag, but it is not new either.

I am not so rich that I can hand over $8 for an old sweater, but I don't want to lose Alma's friendship. What do you suggest?—WILLING TO SETTLE

DEAR WILLING: One of the quickest ways to wreck a friendship is to exchange clothes. Somebody is sure to end up mad. Pay Alma the $8 and consider this the price of the lesson.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I play cards about four times a week. Don't tell me it's too much. I am not asking you that. What I want you to do is write something in your column about card players who hum, whistle, grind their teeth, drum their fingers, flick the ends of the cards with their fingernails, make small clicking noises with their lips, crack their knuckles, (one woman in the game cracks her jaws) or go "cluck cluck cluck" with the tongue.

Can you see how these little habits could drive a person up the wall?—READY TO SCREAM

DEAR READY: Yes, I can, especially when the person is losing. It's amazing how much people can stand when the cards are hot.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I disagree with your advice to the woman whose mother-in-law comes over and cleans her house every week. You said she should be tickled pink and to keep quiet.

Have you ever had anyone take a broom out of your hand and say, "I'll do this—you make the beds"? Has anyone ever come into your home and put away things in places where you can never find them? Has anyone ever stood behind you and done over your work right before your eyes? I have, and it's enough to give a person migraine headaches.

The surest way to get someone to hate you is to "help" them too much. The burden of "gratitude" can be awfully heavy. It can rob a person of his dignity.

Beloved is the mother-in-law who can sense when her help is needed, and offer it unobtrusively. And a dozen orchids to the mother-in-law who can come into her son's home and not say one word about the dust and disorder. I hope I live long enough to be the kind of mother-in-law I never had.—BEEN THRU IT

DEAR BEEN: You have a point and I would not deny it. Thanks for letting us see how it looks from the other side of the transom.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits—the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex—Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Furniture Talk

By Carl Bartsch
"CHOOSING HOME-FURNISHINGS"

THE FIRST PURPOSE of all interior decoration is to create a setting in which people can live happily and in their own individual ways. Beauty is essential, but it is possible to create beauty which is not livable for you.

That's why chairs should be comfortable to sit in — for reading, watching television, relaxing, entertaining. Furniture placement should not be dictated solely by visual effect, but you should think about conversation groupings that bring people together naturally, and consider the activities of your family.

That's why the color scheme should be one that you enjoy. Never choose a color scheme because it is currently in vogue. That's why you can use favorite pieces of furniture, even of different periods, if they contribute to the overall comfort, livability and personal appeal of the room.

We are specialists in home furnishing, and we will gladly work with you in creating a setting which will express your own ideas and way of life. Beauty will be an essential ingredient in that pattern, but it will be beauty meant for living with. Come in and talk over your decorating problems . . . soon.

Couple Pledge Nuptial Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

Doris Jeanette Anderson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Anderson of 105 Central avenue, became the bride of Truman Webster Stelle, son of Dr. and Mrs. Roy M. Stelle of 555 Knollwood road, White Plains, N. Y. The evening candlelight ceremony took place on Friday, December 22, at 7 o'clock in the First Lutheran Church. The Rev. Frederick B. Haer read the double ring wedding rites in the presence of one hundred and twenty-five guests.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Dorothy Engstrom, organist. Church decorations in green and white included Christmas trees and white altar flowers.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory peau de soie gown. Tiny seed pearls were etched on the re-embroidered Alencon lace empire bodice which had a scalloped portrait neckline and short sleeves. The A-line silhouette of the skirt had a pleated back fullness which swept into a graceful chapel train. A small bow topped the train which had appliques of pearl embroidered lace medallions. The bride wore her sister's Swedish wedding crown, a silver crown trimmed with pearls to which a triple tier of French illusion veiling was attached. She carried an arrangement of white Poinsettias.

The maid of honor, Miss Edwina Anderson, twin sister of the bride, was in a long gown of Avocado saki with gold braid highlights. She wore an Avocado saki open pillbox hat and carried an arrangement of red Poinsettias. The bridesmaid, Miss Patricia Berger, was gowned identically to the maid of honor, and carried the same kind of flower arrangement.

Best man was Dr. Roy M. Stelle of White Plains, father of the groom; ushers were Robert Stelle and Richard Stelle, both brothers of the groom, of White Plains.

The mother of the bride chose a jacket dress of blue silk, and the mother of the groom, a blue brocade suit. Both had white orchid corsages. The two grandmothers of the groom,

MRS. TRUMAN WEBSTER STELLE

Mrs. Frank Stelle of Jacksonville, Ill., and Mrs. Stephen Capps of Gaithersburg, Md., had white orchid corsages.

A reception attended by the one hundred and twenty-five wedding guests was held in the church parlor. Decorations in keeping with the holiday were carried out. The wedding cake was topped with a nosegay of white flowers. Aides were the misses Susan Loper, Barbara Dashem, Christian Cornely and Suzanne Lutz, Miss the guest book.

For a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the new Mrs. Stelle wore an aqua knit dress with a white corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Stelle will reside at 4092 Warner avenue, Apt. D-3, Hyattsville, Md., after January 1.

The bride is a 1962 graduate of Warren Area High School, and a 1966 graduate of St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn. She has had two years of graduate study in Gallaudet College, Washington, D.C. The groom is a graduate of Palmer High School, Colorado Springs, Colo., 1962, and of Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., 1966, also is in his second year of graduate studies at Gallaudet College, Washington.

157 Attend Campus Dance

With the glow of a silver Christmas tree adorned with the blue bulbs and tiny blue lights, one hundred and fifty-seven guests enjoyed the annual Warren Campus Dinner-Dance held last Saturday at the Women's Club.

Ten other Christmas trees decorated with silver icicles in a semi-circle around the auditorium and four thick strands of gold tinsel, draping from each corner to the center of the ceiling, completed the setting for the dinner and dance.

This was by far, the largest and most successful affair held by the Warren Campus. Instructors from the local campus and those commuting from the main campus were present. Also, members of the higher education association and officers of the Edinboro State College Alumni Association, Warren chapter were guests.

Among the honored guests, were Dr. James McKinley, dean of Academic Affairs, and Ralph Berlin, co-ordinator of the off-campus centers, both from the main campus of Edinboro. Mayor and Mrs. D.E. Conaway also attended as honored guests. Mrs. Conaway is a member of the board of trustees at Edinboro State College.

Masters of ceremony, Dan Zingone and Fred Blackman, introduced Francis Johnson, director of the Warren Campus, who introduced Dr. McKinley, the main speaker.

Eileen Young, a sophomore at Warren Campus, sang "O Holy Night" and "The Christmas Song" to complete the dinner program.

Punch and cookies were served during the dance. "The Lost Ones" from Pittsburgh provided the music for this festive affair.

The Halls Of Ivy

Jeff has just been initiated into the Theta Chi fraternity, Zeta Kappa chapter, at Ohio Northern University, Ada, Ohio, where he is majoring in Industrial Arts, in his sophomore year of studies.

Miss Suzanne Lutz, assistant director of admissions at Western College for Women, Oxford, Ohio, will give a dessert party for all prospective students and their mothers at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Lutz, 11 Central avenue.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(c) 1967 By The Chicago Tribune
ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q. 1—East-West vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠A7 ♣A9754 ♠AJ843 ♠8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Three spades. With this attractive distribution, you should give partner one more chance. A single raise at this point is a mild effort inasmuch as partner could have passed two diamonds.

Q. 2—As South vulnerable, you hold:
♠K1094 ♠QJ4 ♠J98 ♠A83
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Five clubs. You have a good response and mere preference for partner's first bid suit have nothing to do with it. Your strength in fact you have an above average hand facing a game forcing jump and there could easily be a slam. You should show the ace of clubs.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠KQ8 10842 1075 ♠KJ7
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass Pass 1
Pass 1 NT Pass Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Double you have a good prospect of winning at least three and possibly four tricks so that a penalty of at least 200 is in view with a chance for more.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠62 A7 AJ1085 ♠KQ3
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass 1 1
Pass 1 NT Pass Pass

What do you bid now?
A—While you have sufficient values to justify a free bid, you should refrain from doing so merely to give your partner the courtesy of the road. He may be able to punish one spade, the result bid if so you must not get in his way.

Q. 5—As South vulnerable, you hold:
♠K984 ♠A842 ♠AJ95
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Dble. 2 ♠ 3
Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Inasmuch as your partner made a free bid of three hearts, you should be mildly interested in a slam. This intention should be flashed by means of a cue bid of three spades. Observe that we would not consider the hand quite strong enough for an immediate cue bid but now that partner has spoken voluntarily, the hand shapes up to be much more impressive.

Q. 6—As South vulnerable, you hold:
♠A4 KQ84 ♠K102 ♠963
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—At least five hearts, with six hearts and acceptable second choice. Valued at hearts, your hand contains 17 points and partner has promised a holding of 16 in high cards.

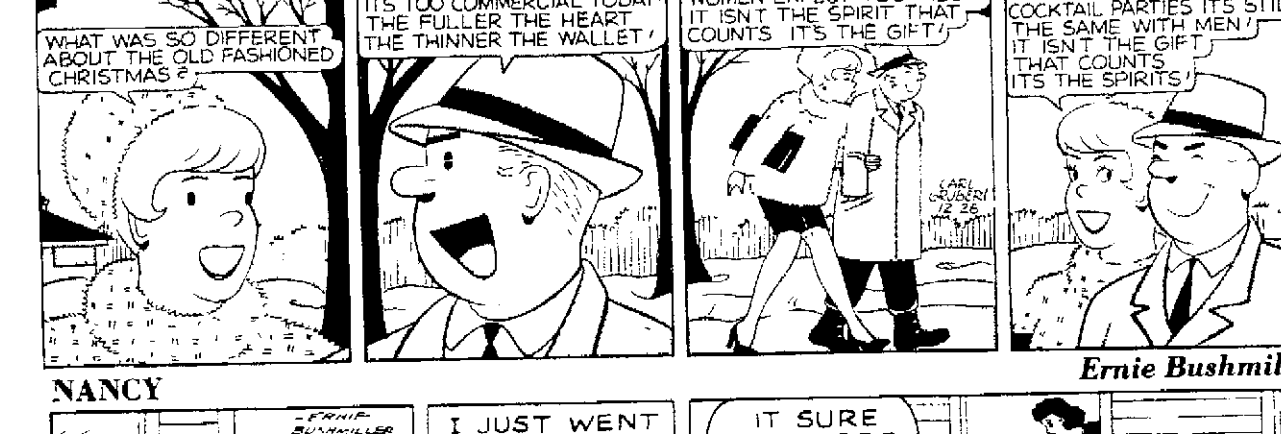

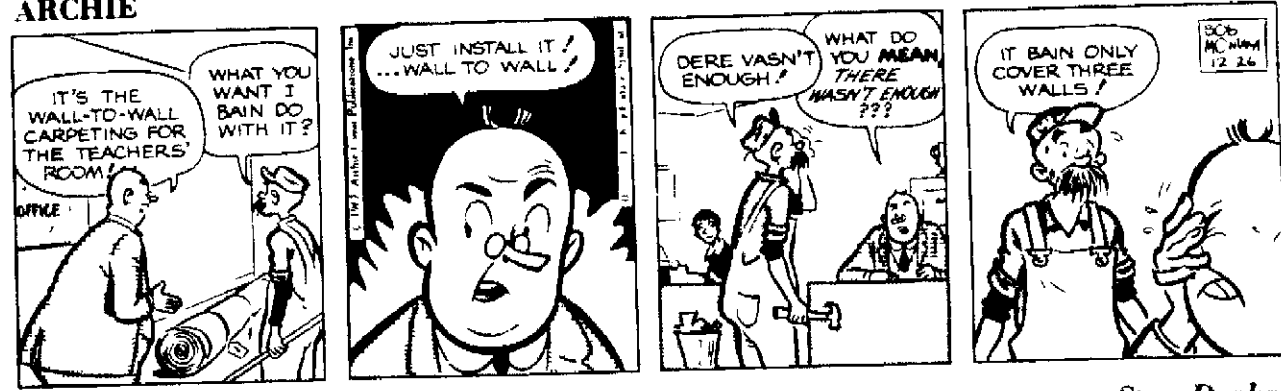

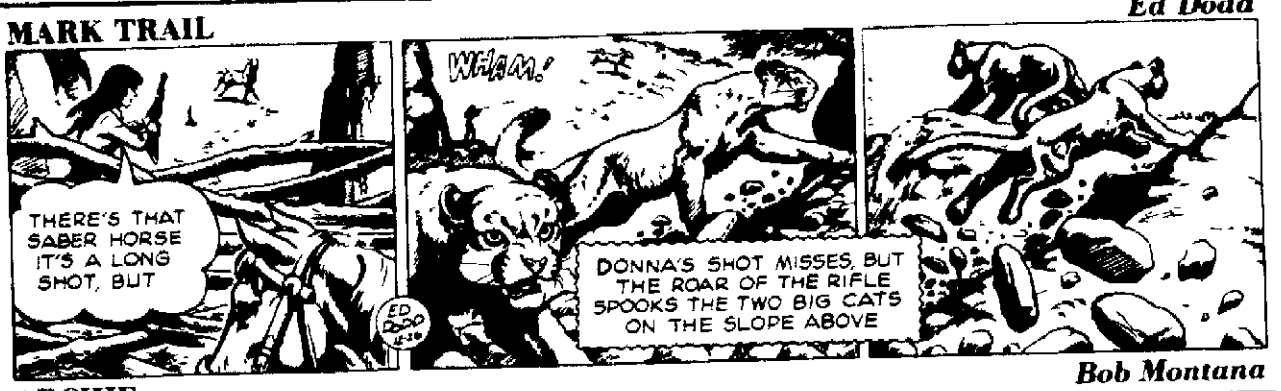

Q. 7—Neither vulnerable and as South you hold:
♠AKJ10 ♠AK ♠AQ842 ♠J8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 NT 1 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A—This is a close choice and in the special circumstances we are inclined to favor a rather unusual bid namely three hearts. If partner chooses to go on to four that may be the best contract. However, we would accept as correct a direct raise to three no trump.

Q. 8—East-West vulnerable as South you hold:
♠5 6 ♠Q10987642 ♠K75
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid?
A—It is difficult to lay down rules for hands containing eight card suits. It is equally difficult to estimate their trick taking possibility. It amounts to sheer guesswork and our guess is in favor of a five diamond bid on the theory that there is more to be gained than lost by taking this action.

Ida Grace Larson had charge of the program which included a reading by Mrs. Ora Miller, "Christmas Seasoning" by Seth Parker from a 1929 Christian Herald magazine.

Miss Larson asked each member to give an outstanding Christmas experience or family custom, in their life.

Amateurs Make Taxi-Riding A Real Adventure in Taiwan

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
TAIPEI, Taiwan—The farm boys flock here from Changhua and Taoyuan, and on their second day in Taipei they are behind the wheel of a battered little red Datsun taxicab. You ask for Pei Men (North Gate), and they blink helplessly, the equivalent of a New York cabbie who has misplaced Times Square.

Taiwan is only now coming to terms with the piston and the tire. The country boys who find working driving taxis are the island's first generation to jerk along at a crawl in top gear, dart in and out of lanes, and nudge the horn every 20 yards.

According to local legend, the Japanese trained Kamikaze pilots during World War II just outside Taipei and the shipwrecked stayed on to drive cabs. Unlike the dolt Japanese — no mean menace themselves — the Taiwanese peasant sons are raw but enthusiastic amateurs.

Whatever the reason, the taxi drivers are said to have earned for Taipei a terrific safety record.

Taipei's traffic would be lethal, of course, were it not so slow. The small cars give a vivid sensation of speed, but normal city traffic stays under 20 miles an hour. The city's white-helmeted policemen have been derided as accident observers, from their apparent lack of effort to direct traffic. Only in Taipei's crowded Hsi-Menting (West Gate) movie district do the police show much concern.

Traffic lights seem to cut against the Chinese grain. At intersections, the drivers' reactions are rarely so clearcut as stop-and-go. The norm is more bluff, jockey and weave. No one really stops, but somehow vehicles get across, with a minimum of carnage.

Taipei's traffic is a vehicular Noah's Ark. The streets teem with pedicabs, pedicabs, pedicabs, bicycles, motorcycles, motorscooters, motorcycle carts, jeeps, ammunition carriers, old American 2½-ton trucks, three-wheeled trucks, oxcarts, man-hauled carts, refuse bins on wheels, buses of every vintage and assorted cars.

And that list covers only vehicles that vie in the streets. The sidewalk traffic—portable restaurants, noodle stands on wheels, movable motion counters—are another story entirely.

The incredible melange of moving objects has forced traffic authorities to mount recurrent campaigns to clear the pedicabs off the streets.

A pedicab is a kind of elongated tricycle; the driver sits in front and pumps, and over the rear axle is a seat for two passengers.

Castro Predicts Sugar Target Will Be Met

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro predicted Sunday night that Cuba will reach its sugar production target of 10 million tons by 1970 despite the severe drought that has damaged the current harvest.

"We have no doubts of completing this goal," Castro said in a 40-minute speech at ceremonies beside the Jobabo River between Oriente and Camaguey provinces.

The ceremonies honored an army land clearing brigade named for the late Ernesto Che Guevara. The brigade has cleared 182,000 acres of land since it was formed Oct. 30.

Castro watched while the brigade's tanks and other heavy equipment rumbled across five new bridges in Camaguey province today. The prime minister then joined the members of the brigade, their families and guests—about 5,000 persons in all—in a traditional Christmas Eve dinner in the open.

Falls Through Ice

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—Daniel Dudascik, 17, drowned Monday when he fell through ice in a mine stripping hole in Kingston Township, police said.

Diaz Hopes to Restrain Abusive Use of Pistols

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
MEXICO CITY—Through constitutional reform, President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz is now seeking to restrain a tendency on the part of his countrymen to settle their disputes or redress their grievances with guns.

A presidential bill reforming the constitution has just been introduced into the senate providing that henceforth "a federal law shall determine the cases, conditions, requirements and places in which inhabitants may be authorized to bear arms."

The reform will come into effect when its corresponding law is approved. Then, some of the local press said optimistically, a "new era" will open in which what is known as "pistolismo" will have been dealt a fatal blow.

In his explanation accompanying the constitutional bill, Diaz declared that the bearing of arms by private individuals "is justified only in those cases and places in which the authorities of the country are unable to afford people immediate and effective protection."

The President is contending with a long tradition particularly strong in the countryside although by no means absent from the cities. "Pistolismo," or the abusive use of pistols, has not been confined to those bent on crime. In many parts of Mexico, something of the old American Far West atmosphere has hung on. For many years the law in any particular place had been determined by whatever armed group was in control.

A recent example between two rival factions of a farmers union in the isolated state of Guerrero resulted in the massacre of 27 peasants and six innocent bystanders last August in Acapulco.

There are also cases reported from time to time of authorities and police in rural communities using or allowing the use of weapons to maintain a kind of tyranny over the local citizenry.
